Six Master Farmers Thrive With Diversity

David and Sharon Bishop operate Ensenada Farm, which includes 63 owned and 456 rented acres plus a 115-cow milking string and about 100 replacements.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — To those who attend Farm Show, the diversity of the state's ag production base can be awe-inspiring.

But for those who missed the show, you can still appreciate the diversity of the region's agriculture enterprises in this profile of the Six 1997 Master Farmers, co-sponsored by Pennsylvania Farmer Magazine and the cooperative extension systems of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, and West Virginia.

The following farm families will be honored as 1997 Master Farmers at a banquet March 10 at the Marriott Hotel in Harrisburg:

• David and Sharon Bishop, Doylestown. The Bishops operate the 519-acre Ensenada Farm, Doylestown, which includes Bishop's father, George. They farm with son Joshua, 13, and daughter Nicole, 10.

The farm has been in the family since the turn of the century. David and Sharon purchased the home farm in late 1987 and the partnership dissolved in 1990. Ensenada includes 63 owned and 456 rented acres, plus a 115-cow milking string and about 100 replacements.

The southeastern Pennsylvania Holstein operation has made increased milk production per person and other labor efficiencies as priorities. They have help from two full-time and one part-time employee. They achieve a 23,500-pound rolling herd average in an 80-stall stanchion barn. They won numerous milk production awards through the years.

Three years ago, the Bishops joined the Lehigh Valley Crop

Cattle Exports To Japan Look 'Rosy'

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "Rosy" is how one Japanese buyer describes the ongoing relationship with beef producers in America.

And as the tariff charges steadily drop every year for imports, Japan plans to make more purchases of what they consider high quality beef — made in America.

That's the message provided to more than 200 cattle feeders and agri-industry representatives by Shin Yamakawa, general manager of the Colonial Beef/Marudai Food Company, Philadelphia, Tuesday morning at the Penn State-sponsored Cattle Feeder's Day at the Farm and Home Center.

Yamakawa said that Japanese consumers are eating more sukiyaki dishes, which consists of thinly sliced beef, vegetables, soy sauce, sake, and sugar. They're also cooking more meals based on shinshu items, which make use of a heavily marbled type meat in a variety of dishes. A popular menu item in the summertime in Japan is Korean barbecue, using a thinner sauce than Americans use but which is sprinkled with pepper and salt.

The Japanese do not have any beef oven-type cuisine, such as roasts.

Tioga County Dairy Day Topics Focus On Dry Cow, Heifer Management

CAROLYN MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYILLE (Tioga Co.) — "Develop a plan of attack for your farm for the future," said Robert Turner, east region coordinator of the Dairy MAP program as he addressed both farmers and industry exhibitors gathered for Tioga County Dairy Day held here recently.

"Today most producers would rather go it alone," Turner said. "They've got to be stubborn. They've lasted in this industry through trying times, and I'm not going to tell you that it's going to get better, but what I will tell you is that (the industry) will keep changing."

With the never-ending changes in technology, Turner said that it gets more and more difficult to stay current. That's why he emphasizes taking a team approach to managing your business.

"Any good business will bring people in and other consultants to help decide what to do with the business," said Turner. "You can pull on the knowledge of several people."

The first step is gathering a core group of consultants including, but not limited to, nutritionists, feed dealers, lenders, tax advisers, marketing specialists, equipment suppliers, and AI representatives.

"Pick a team that will have your dairy's best interest at heart," said Turner.

The next step is to develop a strategic marketing plan for your business and build a mission statement, or why the farm business exists based on the values of the owner.

Turner also emphasized the importance of setting goals that are "SMART," or Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Rewarding and Timed.

"There are capable, intelligent, trained individuals in industry and finance to help you with your business," Turner stressed.

The teamwork issue worked like a thread to tie the day's other speakers together, emphasizing

Young Farmer Convention Announces Award Recipients

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Recently the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association (PYFA) met here at the Eisenhower Inn at its annual convention.

Following are the various awards presented to members.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Contests

On Wednesday, Feb. 5, the PYFA presented the awards to this past year's winners of the Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Contests.

The contest or recognition started last year with the contest applications being completed and sent to the state awards committee. They were judged and winners of each region selected.

Out of these regional winners a state winner was chosen. The regional winners are invited to the winter convention where the state winners are announced.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Under 30
Region IV

Daniel and Laurel Wilkinson are from Gettysburg and are members of Gettysburg Young Farmers, whose advisor is Tom Oyler Jr. The Wilkinsons have three children — Andy, Dusty, and Kendall.

Dan is one-third partner in Getty Acres Farm operation, with his father and brother being the rest of the partnership. Dan is also one-half partner in DEW Farms, with his brother being the other half.

Getty Acres farms 2,739 acres and DEW Farms rents 270 acres. Main crops are corn, wheat, barley, alfalfa, timothy, and silage

Although Merideth Welderspahn is a Pennsylvania Alternate Princess, her life revolves much more around Yahweh Dairy Farm than around royalty duties. To read about the Welderspahn family and their Crawford County farm, turn to page B4 for the feature story by Lou Ann Good.

Maryland Holstein Announces Convention

CENTREVILLE, Md. — The Maryland State Holstein Association has announced that its annual convention is to be held March 14 and 15 at the Kent Island American Legion in Stevenville.

The hosts of the convention are the Queen Anne County and Kent County Holstein clubs, representing, "The Eastern Shore, where the sun rises first in Maryland."

The deadline to order convention tickets — to attend the association business, ladies program or youth program luncheons and the main covention banquet — is March 1.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
FEBRUARY 5, 1997

Grain and soybean bids closed higher after a day of slow trading. Fund buying on the board was the major supportive factor for all commodities. Good export sales on this week's books and indications that the U.S. may sell Pakistan 360,000 tonnes of wheat, also added strength. China's purchase of U.S. soybean oil overnight and improved soybean meal demand, boosted bean bids. Wheat 3 to 10 cents higher. Corn 1 to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 3 to 5 cents higher. Soybeans 2 to 4 cents higher. The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FEBRUARY 10-16, 1997

VALENTINE'S DAY, FEB. 14.

SHROVE TUESDAY

February 11 is Shrove Tuesday, followed by Ash Wednesday, or the first day of Lent, and both immediately precede the first Sunday in Lent on February 16. In England, Shrove Tuesday was traditionally a day for wild football games, symbolic of the inevitable and seasonal clash between the dark of winter and the light of oncoming summer. Shriving is a process of confessing one's sins and purifying oneself before Lent. In our country, we are more familiar with the Shrove Tuesday celebration of Mardi Gras, French for "fat Tuesday," and the culmination of the Carnival season in the New Orleans area. Mumming plays, chicken gumbos, and fried pancakes, or deep-fried "Oliebollen," are in order.

Tell the truth and run.

– Yugoslavian proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ The secret to good doughnuts is to keep the fat hot enough so the doughnut cooks through quickly.

OLIEBOLLEN

1 package active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water
2-1/3 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup orange juice
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons chopped, candied orange peel oil for deep frying

Stir yeast into warm water and set aside Mix together flour, salt, sugar, and nutmeg. Mix dissolved yeast with orange juice, eggs, and orange peel, and stir into flour to make a dough. Knead on a floured board until smooth, then cover and let rise until doubled. Heat oil in an electric skillet or other fryer to 375° F. Drop dough by tablespoons into hot oil.

Makes about 2 dozen.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the Sun doth smile on St. Eulalie's Day (Feb. 12), it's good for apples and cider, they say.

If snow begins at mid of day, expect a foot of it to lay.

When snow melts off the roof, the next storm will be rain; when the snow blows off, reckon on snow.

OPINION

Plan To Use Pesticides Properly

Look! The calendar says February. Those who don't know the heart of farmers would say it is early to be thinking about spring farm work. But farmers are already "itchy" for the ground to thaw and the first blades of grass to appear.

So now is also the time to think about potential off-target movement or drift when you apply pesticides. This can create risk for nearby people and wildlife, damage non-target crops, and potentially pollute surface and ground water resources. According to the American Crop Protection Association, an organization of ag chemical companies, farmers and ranchers should be aware of the principal factors that can affect drift, including droplet size and application pattern, equipment adjustments, and weather conditions during application. Another key factor is sound judgment. Simply planning for the possibility of off-target movement of pesticides is a key step in reducing spray drift.

Being sensitive to the unique environment of your farm is a key component of the planning needed prior to and during pesticide application. Consider leaving an unsprayed strip or buffer zone around water supplies, sinkholes, abandoned wells, wetlands, downwind neighbors or sensitive crops. If you must spray these areas, be sure to do so when conditions are favorable.

We believe farmers can serve both the environment and their calling to feed the world by planning to use pesticides properly in their upcoming spring applications.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Make Cows Comfortable

According to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, cow comfort helps pave the way for high milk production.

Comfort starts with providing cows with adequate shelter. It does not need to be warm. It does need to protect cows from inclement weather and from cold drafts.

It needs to provide cows with fresh air and a clean, dry place to lie down. They need to feel secure and can get up and down with ease and without the risk of injury.

Heifers that have never been tied will have a hard time adjusting to being tied and learning how to use stalls properly. Acclimate them to stalls well before calving time to minimize stress at calving.

The last thing you want to do is throw a heifer off feed at this crucial time in her life or subject her to injury because she did not know how to lie down or get up in a stall without a struggle.

To Make Cow Stalls Comfortable

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reports that to improve cow comfort, many farmers are putting soft rubber mats or mattresses filled with chopped rubber in their stalls.

This provides cows with a softer bed. It also offers them more traction so they can get up with less struggle and with less risk of injury.

A thin layer of bedding should also be used with the rubber mats and mattresses. It helps to absorb moisture and reduces the risk of hock injuries and mastitis.

Placing a bedding retainer bar at the back ledge of the stall and maintaining a thick layer of bedding in the stall can accomplish the same thing.

To Select Corn Hybrids

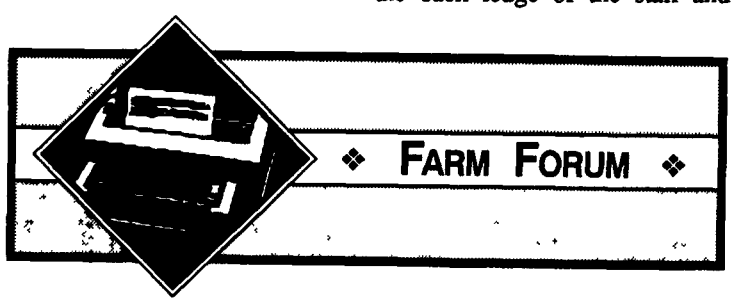
Most corn growers will be under pressure to make their corn hybrid selections for the upcoming cropping season during the next several weeks. Overall, the amount of seed that will be available should be adequate. However, some of the newer releases and the better selling hybrids may be a little short in supply.

Dr. Greg Roth, Penn State extension agronomist, has made several suggestions to help farmers select the best varieties available for use on their farm. He suggests spending time looking at performance studies of varieties sold in your area.

Penn State and many other universities conduct performance studies each year and publish the results. (The results were included in the Corn Talk section in the Jan. 25 edition of this newspaper.) Not all varieties are in the study each year, including many of the good varieties.

Dr. Roth cautions against using on-farm, nonreplicated strip trials as the only information in making a selection. If strip plot data is available from several locations and has some of the varieties used at university test sites, the data is more valuable in making an informed decision. It is a good idea to look at data for at least three years.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Do more than listen. Understand."



Editor,

Government's treatment of the American dairy farmer is a travesty of justice. The government and our elected officials treat the farmer as an indentured servant. They expect the farmer, through his or her toil and efforts with the dairy cows, to provide cheap food for the American consumer while the processors reap all the profits.

Our government, starting with the President, should look in Webster's dictionary. "Independence" follows the word "Indenture" and the one definition given is "an income sufficiant for a livelihood." This is all the farmer is asking, when in fact he deserves more.

The government knows what's going on while most of the American consumers do not. Although some consumers say they would pay more for dairy products, this does not correlate with the farmer getting more money for his raw product.

The farmer is not looking for a handout. It is the government who is looking for the free ride. They expect the farmers to feed the American population and not get paid a fair price for their product.

I believe the President or any elected official and the American consumer understands the time, effort, and expense it takes to maintain a simple domestic pet.

THE FACE OF AN ANGEL
February 9, 1997

THE FACE OF AN ANGEL
February 9, 1997

Background Scripture:
Acts 6:1 through 8:3
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 5:43-48

"The Hellenists murmured against the Hebrew . . ." And I am glad that they did!

Because, up to this point, the earliest Christians were sounding a little too good to be true. Acts 6:1-6, however, clearly establishes them as human beings as well as Christians.

The "Hellenists" were probably Jewish followers of Jesus who spoke Greek and participated in Greek culture. The "Hebrews" were probably Aramaic-speaking Jewish followers of Jesus who were resistant to Greek customs. Both groups were part of the Christian community in Jerusalem. The first factions in the church — but not the last.

The Greek-speaking Christians felt that their own widows were not getting their fair share of the distribution. That means that those who did the distribution were Aramaic-speaking Christians. So "the Hellenists murmured against the Hebrews . . ."

That's the way trouble usually starts in congregations today. Someone feels short-changed in some way and begins to "murmur." Note that Acts doesn't indicate who is at fault here, or if anyone is at fault. Maybe the Hebrews were short-changing the Hellenist widows, or maybe it only seemed that way. Maybe it was true, but unintentional. Whatever the facts, Acts concentrates on what is done to resolve this conflict. They compromise, choosing some Hellenist deacons to serve with the Hebrews.

ONE WHO SERVES

It is interesting that these men are chosen to "serve tables" so that the apostles can "devote ourselves to prayer and the ministry of the word" (6:4). Because, no sooner are they chosen and commissioned, than one of them, Stephen, gets into trouble, not through serving tables, but in preaching and teaching in one of Jerusalem's synagogues. The apostles seem to have a good solution — some will pray and preach, others will serve tables — but it doesn't quite work out that way. Those who serve tables may also have the opportunity to preach. Jesus himself said, "For which is the greater, one who sits at table, or one who serves? But I am among you as one who serves" (Lk. 22:27).

As a deacon, instead of an apostle, Stephen may have seemed to have been of lower rank in the Christian community. But of all these disciples, none shines brighter — literally or figuratively — than Stephen. He may have been recruited to wait on tables, but he was also a powerful witness for Christ. He is described as being "full of grace and power" and it is said of his detractors that "they could not withstand the wisdom and Spirit with which he spoke."

SECRET INSTIGATION

And how did his detractors react? As troublemakers usually react: "Then they secretly instigated men, who said, 'We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and God'" (6:11). When you run out of reason, go behind someone's back and slander them — a popular tactic then and still today.

But, Stephen, is a shining example. Those who dragged him before the Sanhedrin almost literally saw him "shine." And gazing at him, all who sat in the council saw that his face was like the face of an angel" (6:15). Not his words alone, but his demeanor reminded them of Jesus Christ. And, when they had condemned him to death, Stephen still continued to shine: "But he, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God" (7:55). The light they saw in him was the reflected light of God in Christ.

In Stephen's shoes, I probably would have looked no further than the faces of my accusers and reflected the anger and bitterness I saw there. But Stephen "gazed into heaven" and reflected, not the darkness of the crowd, but the eternal light of Jesus Christ. And thus he was enabled to pray: "Lord Jesus receive my spirit . . . Lord, do not hold this sin against them" (7:59,60).

By the power of Jesus Christ, a human face — mine and yours — can shine like the face of an angel.

World Wide Leader in Quality Isolation Calf Housing

Did You Know?

University tests and tens of 1,000s of satisfied dairy producers have proven isolation calf housing, hutches are absolutely the best way to raise healthy calves Progressive dairy producers do not sacrifice calf health for personal convenience

Calf-tel is the only thermoformed hutch Thermoforming is a process that imparts strength to the polymer like forging does to steel Rotocasting, a process used by all other plastic hutch manufacturers, creates a weaker, less durable product that is prone to cracking

Calf-tel is the only hutch manufactured with completely opaque material to effectively eliminate the green house effect This heat trapping effect overheats calves when temperatures climb above 80° F and also causes uncontrollable temperature swings daily when temperatures drop below freezing Over 100,000 Calf-tels are helping raise healthier, growthier calves worldwide from Florida through the sunbelt to California Washington across the dairy belt to New England and in 20 foreign countries

Calf-tel is the only hutch made of high molecular weight polyethylene plastic with a high load UV blocking pigment This quality material enables Hampel Corp to warranty Calf-tel for ten years, the longest in the calf hutch industry

Long after competitive hutches are discarded, used Calf-tels sell from $125 to $200 each–even after ten years of use Such a high residual value decreases cost per hutch to as low as $12 per year

When operator comfort is a concern, creative dairy producers have provided covered service alleys or placed Calf-tels in two or three sided shelters during inclement times

PRO-LIX
• LIQUID SUPPLEMENT •

Pro-Lix liquid supplements are packed with protein, energy, vitamins and minerals to meet your animal's supplemental requirements. Pro-lix is molasses-based for palatability and features other components with important nutritional benefits. These ingredients stimulate microorganisms in the rumen, boosting appetite and feed intake while enhancing the digestive process.

Pro-Lix supplements can provide you with many benefits. Lick wheel feeding allows 24 hour availability to all cattle. Research indicates that Pro-Lix improves digestion rates and forage consumption on poor quality roughage. Pro-Lix is a nutrient dense product that takes the effort out of feeding a supplement. Free choice liquid supplements eliminate the "boss cow" syndrome and allow animals to balance their own nutrient intake. Pro-Lix is an economical source of nutrients that will fill the nutritional gaps in your forage programs.

Pro-Lix Liquid Cattle Feed Supplements are available from our dealership! Now, feeding your cattle supplements has never been easier! We'll provide you with a quality Pro-Lix product and feed your cattle for you! Let's get together and get Pro-Lix working for you in your operation!!!

Because The Best Seed/Herbicide System Starts With The Best Seed.

A4045

Synchrony STS herbicide

A4045 combines very high yield potential, strong emergence, and resistance to Phytophthora root rot. Excellent standability contributes to easier harvest and higher profit potential. A4045 has performed well on the east coast in conventional and double cropping.

In addition, A4045 has the trait for enhanced tolerance to sulfonylurea herbicides like new Synchrony® STS® and Reliance™ STS®.

A4045 for top soybean yields. Synchrony STS or Reliance STS for over-the-top broadleaf weed control. Together you get the best seed/herbicide system--for greater consistency on your farm.

Cattle Exports To Japan Look 'Rosy'

Japanese consumers prefer a meat that is "well-marbled, no discoloration — the more marbling, the more delicious," he said.

Yamakawa indicated that since 1987 in Japan, there has been a three-fold increase in beef consumption. "This year we can expect another increase. U.S. beef will make a big part of the increase," he noted.

Together with Todd Kikkawa, director of operations for Colonial Beef/Marudai Food Company who also spoke at the feeder's day, the company is backing research to provide a beef product with increased marbling. The company is working with Washington University to crossbreed Wyagu cattle, native to Japan, with Black Angus from this country. The Wyagu/Angus breeding program "will be a very big business," said Yamakawa.

About a quarter of the beef raised in Japan is comprised of Wyagu cattle, but the number of Wyagu farmers are declining in Japan. Most farms are small, owned by families, with about 5-10 head of beef per farmer. The number of farmers are also decreasing, indicated Yamakawa. That means more demand for American Wyagu beef.

At the same time, more youth in Japan (traditionally raised on a diet of fish) are eating beef, at least once a week in a family diet. The younger generation, said Yamakawa, is used to eating a lot of hamburgers from "McDonald's and Wendy's."

Yamakawa indicated this was the first time he has presented information about his company to any agricultural organization. He spoke about the difficulties experienced through the years in importing American beef.

Under the old simultaneous buy and sell (SBS) system, Yamakawa indicated, the chilled beef market opened to Japan with tight restrictions. Since the chilled beef market began, though, the Japanese impressions of American beef were made — American beef is a "high quality beef" and they are looking for only high quality prime or choice.

As general purchaser for his company, Yamakawa indicated he purchases about 50,000 head of beef from Pennsylvania each year.

Purchases have increased from 1996 levels, which were high.

Most beef takes about a month to reach Japan in chilled containers. A great deal of the business, according to associate Todd Kikkawa, is being done through Moyer Packing.

"We prefer a heavy carcass with higher marbling," Kikkawa said.

The director of operations was asked about the chilled beef box size and the larger cattle. "As long as we have enough (beef) quantities, we will make a bigger box," he said.

Yamakawa told those at the feeder's day that buyers for the Japan beef market are still struggling with high tariffs on chilled beef (now running 43 percent, but scheduled to drop to 32 percent in the year 2000), and indicated that the Japanese government needs more pressure by American growers to reduce the tariff.

In 1996, according to Yamakawa, American beef exceeded Australian imports into Japan.

Cattle Outlook

There will be no recession in 1997, and this year will look economically a lot like last year, according to H. Louis Moore, Penn State economics professor at the feeder's day.

The only gray news on the horizon is the upsurge in consumer credit which worries the financial industry.

The good news for agriculture is that exports are rebounding — about 12 percent of the meat produced in this country goes to the export market. We are exporting 18 percent of all the chicken we produce in the country, said Moore.

China is eating more chicken. "They want to eat something other than rice and fish heads," Moore said.

"We're the low-cost producer in the world," he said. "This is really good news — our exports are going to continue to increase."

Moore said, "A strong national economy is going to help the beef business this year." Overall meat production will increase 1 percent from 1996 levels, according to Moore. Beef will increase about 1 percent, while pork will decline about 3 percent. Broilers continue their steady production rise and will be up 3 percent from previous levels. Turkeys will also be up 1 percent.

Cattle futures as of Feb. 1 for April 1997 stood at $66.82.

Cash price, while not actually listed, should range from $64.00-$65.00, Moore noted. Cattle inventory last July 1 in all 50 states was 1 percent less than the year before. Dairy stood at 7 million head and beef at 38 million head. Jan. 1, 1997 inventories of cattle stood at 101.2 million head, down 2.2 percent from last Janu-

Management Association for crop consulting. Their heavy wet soils average about six tons per acre of alfalfa-ryegrass hay, 110 bushels of corn per acre for grain, 18-20 tons per acre of corn silage, 48 bushels per acre of soybeans, and 45 bushels per acre of wheat. Most years they grow all the feed they need.

All are vaccinated and backgrounded over winter at the farm, then sold as heavy yearlings. McGinnis plans to cut back to 100 cows, convert some leased ground from forages to row crops, and expand the grain operations.

David is a member of the Bucks County Holstein Club, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and Bucks County DHIA. Sharon serves on the Bucks-Montgomery Dairy Promotion Committee and served a term on the county Farm Service Agency.

• Conrad and Patricia Langenfelder, Kennedyville, Md. A little more than eight years ago, Conrad "Dutch" Langenfelder and wife Patricia uprooted their fourth-generation Maryland farming family and transplanted it to the Eastern Shore. The move took almost a year to complete.

Now, the operation includes a 2,300-acre cash grain operation (1,478 acres owned) and a 180-sow farrow-to-finish operation which produces 3,600 hogs a year. The farm includes children Jennifer Debnam, Bill, and Kristen Nickerson.

Dutch's responsibilities include overall management, marketing with DTN, crop spraying, hauling, and repairs. Patricia takes care of bookkeeping, straw baling, and assisting in the farrowing house.

Jennifer, a graduate of Virginia Tech, returned to the farm as swine operations manager after five years as a loan officer.

Kristen, a Wesley College and an accountant, returned full-time to work in the pork operation. Bill handles the crops, including planting, combine operation, and scouting.

The Langenfelders have two years of yield data from the on-the-go yield monitor. This year they plan to start using the data and global positioning system field mapping equipment to more closely manage field nutrients.

All their farmland is under conservation and nutrient management plans. Reduced tillage is used on more than 75 percent of their crop acres. Their per-acre yields have averaged 141 bushels of corn, 50 bushels of soybeans, 35 bushels of double- crop soybeans, 80 bushels of wheat, and 100 bushels of barley.

In 1993 the Langenfelders were recognized as the county's Soil Conservation Cooperator Family of the Year. Pat was the first woman to be elected county Farm Bureau president in Maryland. She served two terms on the Maryland Ag Commission. She was also appointed to Ken County's Comprehensive Plan Oversight Committee. She has been an officer of Maryland Farm Bureau Women and the state Pork Council Women. She also served as past president of Maryland Ag Week.

Dutch has been a county Farm Bureau president and has served four terms on American Farm Bureau's Swine Advisory Committee.

He's a past president and is treasurer of the Maryland Pork Producers.

• Wayne C. McGinnis Farm, White Hall, Md. McGinnis, who was graduated from the University of Maryland and became a high school physical education teacher and sports coach, purchased a 260-acre farm in 1963. Along with the purchase included 50 registered Angus cows and a new tractor.

McGinnis farms with Harriet and children Anne McGinnis-Jones, Jay, and Brett. The farm size is 1,420 acres with 1,060 acres in crops and a 160-cow Angus cow-calf operation.

The farm size increased so that, in 1989, they were farming more than 1,500 acres. McGinnis, who has used only performance- tested bulls on his herd, produces 365-day steer calves averaging 700 pounds each.

Maryland Cattlemen's Association, and Maryland Grain Producers Association. He is heavily involved in ag land preservation efforts.

• Jack, Wilma and Dwight Mickey, Chambersburg. Since the 1970s, Dwight Mickey has dedicated himself to keeping Shatzer Fruit Market a viable, growing business. Included on the operation are his parents and business partners, Wilma and Jack Mickey. They farm 60 acres.

In the 1960s, the Shatzers wholesaled 90 percent of their fruit and retailed 10 percent. It's the opposite today, with most of the produce sold through their on-farm market.

Wilma's parents milked cows on the farm until 1955. The present market was built in 1950. Wilma and Jack assumed control in 1972 and continued the gradual move to retailing. Dwight joined the operation full-time after he was graduated from Shippensburg University in 1981. A three-way partnership with his parents was formed in 1978.

Dwight oversees fruit production and Wilma managed the market, open from mid-June until March. She also does the bookkeeping. Jack does all off-farm trucking and helps Dwight with fieldwork. The family provides most of the operation's labor. They employ a couple part-time workers in the market.

Three seasonal employees help with the harvest.

The farm irrigation system includes a two-acre, 3-million-gallon pond for overhead, and two wells with sand filters for drip. Dwight employs a full integrated pest management program and uses computerized expert systems to decide when weather and pest conditions are right for spraying.

Jack served two years as president of the state horticulture association and is treasurer of the county horticultural society.

Wilma is active in the Franklin County Horticulture Society, serving as assistant secretary. She served 13 years on the county extension board.

• Ruth and Sterling Raber, Orefield. Sterling and wife Ruth always worked side by side raising hogs and grain at their Lehigh County farm. However, when respiratory problems limited Sterling's ability to share in the farm chores, he took over bookkeeping and marketing. Ruth oversees the farrow-to-finish operation and fieldwork. The operation includes two full-time employees.

Wayne C. McGinnis farms with his family on his 1,420-acre operation with a 160-cow Angus cow-calf operation in White Hall, Md.

Sterling, who suffers from asthma and who suffered a minor heart attack last year, turned more of his attention to politics, serving as county commissioner since 1978.

The farm couple started with 10 gilts and a borrowed boar.

They gradually expanded to 100 sows and seven boars. Now they market about 1,800 crossbred hogs per year. Average litter size is 9.5 pigs with 2.5 litters per year. Pigs are hand-mated using genetically matched boars and gilts for leaner meat. The Rabers market their hogs to Hatfield.

Their farrowing house and nursery are converted chicken houses.

The Rabers built the grain operation gradually over the years. Now they maintain a 60,000-bushel storage system, built in 1976. They grad 450 acres of corn for grain, averaging about 125 bushels per acre. Their 200 acres of soybeans yield an average 45 bushels per acre. Another 230 acres are in wheat, yielding about 60 bushels. They also grow 30 acres of oats and 25 acres of alfalfa.

Sterling serves as a Lehigh County commissioner. He also serves on the county extension and conservation district boards.

He has been vice president of the Eastern Pennsylvania Pork Producers Association and is a member of Farm Bureau. Sterling also provided the driving force behind Lehigh County's ag land preservation program. The Rabers have sold development rights on 212 acres, reinvesting the proceeds into more real estate.

The Rabers have two grown daughters, Patricia Hughes, a part-time flight attendant, and Diane, a medical technologist. They also have one grandchild.

• Mehrle H. Ramsburg Jr., Thurmont, Md. Ramsburg is the fourth generation to farm Brookfield Farms, and he's in the planning stages of passing the 275-acre Frederick County farm to the fifth generation.

Mehrle farms with his wife Thelma, daughter Mary Jane Roop, and the farm's six employees. Mehrle has general manager responsibilities, Thelma has total charge of the calves, and Mary Jane is responsible for morning milkings and payroll.

The operation is a sole proprietorship encompassing 275 owned and 500 rented acres and a 245-cow dairy. More than 650 acres are in crop production. All crop production is aimed at raising feedstuffs for 520 Holstein cows, heifers, and calves.

Alfalfa haylage is harvested at an average of 5.75 tons per acre. Corn silage yields weigh in at 18 tons per acre. Ground high-moisture corn, also packed in bunker silos, averages about 5 tons per acre. Double-crop barley averages close to 90 bushels per acre. Milk through a double-8 herringbone parlor with automatic takeoffs averages about 19,200 pounds production per cow.

Ramsburg's focus is on intense management, including timely forage harvest, more efficient use of corn stalks, and feed testing.

Ramsburg's focus on management was the result of a farm accident in December 1989 when his coat sleeve caught on a PTO shaft while unloading ground ear corn. He was injured extensively and his right arm was amputated.

"Hospitalized for 28 days, I had a lot of time for soul searching," he said. "But when I came home, I knew I had things to do and people counting on me."

While hospitalized, Ramsburg vowed to help prevent such accidents from happening to others. In 1994, he helped start and plan a farm safety camp for Frederick County farm youth. For the last three years he has provided demonstration s on PTO dangers, taking his message to 4-H and service clubs. He visits amputees and farm accident victims.

"The accident made me a better manager," he said. "I had to learn to rely on my brain more than my muscles." The Ramsburgs farm with their children, Virginia Crist, Mary Jane Roop, and Judy. Their daughter Barbara is deceased.

Ramsburg spends much time serving agriculture in leadership roles. He has served as a director and officer of the Frederick County and Mid-East DHIA and has ben a director of the county Farm Bureau. He is a dairy representative on the Maryland Ag Commission, a director of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative, vice president of the Thurmont Cooperative, a director of Central Maryland Farm Credit, and vice president of the Dairy Council of Greater Metropolitan Washington. He also serves on the American Farm Bureau Federation's dairy advisory committee, Frederick County's Farm Safety Camp For Kids committee, and the county's property review committee.

Clockwise, from top, Dwight, Jack, and Wilma Mickey, Chambersburg, operate 60 acres of fruit and other produce marketed mostly on the farm.

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The PA Farm Bureau (PFB) will be placing emphases on 11 different issues this year at the local and state levels, according to an announcement this year at the local and state levels, according to an announcement today by Guy F. Donaldson, president of the statewide membership organization. The 11 issues were designated by the PFB Board of Directors as the "priority issues" for legislative or regulatory action this year.

"Our 54 county Farm Bureaus all participated in designating these priority issues for 1997," Donaldson said. PFB is a general farm organization with more than 26,000 family members and is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

In alphabetical order, here are the 11 issues:

Local Tax Reforms: PFB seeks legislation that will make the local taxation system fair and equitable for all citizens.

Milk And Commodity Pricing: PFB seeks marketing techniques to increase the price of all commodities, including milk.

Private Property Rights: PFB seeks legislation that would protect farmers' private property rights.

Reconstruction Of Local Bridges And Roads: PFB wants additional funds to build and repair rural roads and bridges to transport produce and supplies to and from the farm.

Rural Health Care: PFB seeks legislation and regulations to provide adequate health care in the country.

Tort Reform: PFB seeks tort reform in the area of the unreasonable awards being granted in legal suits.

Water Use Management/Rights: PFB wants legislation and regulations for fair distribution of water during times of drought, and to clarify water use rights of property owners.

Cattle Exports To Japan

ary. Calf inventory was 39.6 million head, down 2 percent.

National growth in the economy of a steady 2-3 percent should help keep economic woes at bay. This is the third longest period of economic growth in U.S. history, Moore said, though overall growth, profits, and inflation for most economic sectors will be the same as last year.

Natural disasters could effect the economy negatively, such as the snow out in the Dakotas that has literally buried herds of cattle. Moore indicated that 13,000-100,000 beef animals could be found dead under the snow.

Overall, however, more of our farm income "is coming from off-farm sources," Moore said. "That's good or bad, depending on how you look at it. How many of us have to work off the farm to support our farm habit?"

For beef producers in general, it's time to also look closely at other agricultural sectors to see what impact this could have on them. As an example, Moore pointed out that Perdue is planning to build 200 broiler houses on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Additionally, more and more grain is being used for the beef and swine industries. Corn use for beef stands out front, with use totally nearly 5 billion bushels last year. Corn exports are totally about 2 billion bushels and corn food for additives and seed stood at 1.6 billion bushels.

Record corn use again could have carryovers low for the second straight year. USDA projections for corn carryover in 1997 are 1.1 billion bushels, which Moore believes are too high. USDA is still looking at the "psychology of second or third-largest corn crops" when making estimates, as corn use increases. Also, "we're getting to the point right now where we have to produce big crops to keep prices of livestock lower," according to the economist.

Overall, there will be fewer animals on feedlot in the future than in the past few years.

Moore pointed out that some producers complain that when the price drops at the farm, it doesn't drop at the retail level.

That's not true, Moore noted. Even though the process starts slowly, the price does decrease at the retail level. The price at the retail level was an average 6 cents per pound lower than the previous year; however, the price did not drop to reflect all the drops the industry took.

Beef Grading Review, Changes

Martin E. O'Connor, agricultural marketing specialist with the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service, Livestock and Seed Division, spoke about the USDA beef grading programs and recent changes to the system.

In grading, an important factor that the specialists look for is marbling. Marbling "is the highest degree of accuracy (regarding) taste, juiciness, and flavor of meat," and is an important aspect in the grading program.

An important segment of their work is the branded programs for the different beef organizations that utilize the USDA service.

"The branded program is becoming very popular for different segments of the industry," said O'Connor. These are programs developed under total quality management to allow the organizations to market different cuts of beef and to serve as a product identification and records system.

For one such organization, out of eight million head of cattle that went through an evaluation, only ¼ of the total qualified for the branded program, or about 1.8 million head. That translates into about 1.34 billion pounds of beef.

Producers should understand the difference between inspection and grading. Inspection involves examining the safety and health of meat processing plants and grading simply looks at the quality of beef.

The service provided by USDA is entirely voluntary. Beef slaughterhouses receive USDA's help to the tune of 100,000 head of cattle per day for grading purposes.

In fiscal year 1996, USDA graded 20.4 billion pounds of beef and certified 12.1 billion pounds. Revenues were $10.1 million for the grading program and $7.9 million for certification to the processors. Grading costs are $36.60 per hour, which work out, on average, to about 37 cents per carcass.

Grading factors include overall maturity, skeletal and lean maturity and physical evaluation of the skeleton. Lean quality, including texture, firmness, and marbling, are also examined. Carcass cutability is figured into the grading process.

O'Connor indicated that he travels to many parts of the country to evaluate the uniform standards of graders in various plants.

O'Connor also spoke about the "B" maturity grade changes taking place now, which will "prevent more than 200 million undesirable eating experiences per year" for consumers, he said, based on surveys.

This means that 1.58 percent of all cattle on average would fall into the change area, affecting aged steers and heiferettes.

About 1.49 percent of the cattle would change from a low choice or select grade to standard.

Beef Council Update

Matt Perrier, promotions director for the Pennsylvania Beef Council, said that in the next 4-5 years, there will be changes to meat cases in supermarkets to reflect the changes in consumer preferences.

There will be three sections in the case, Perrier indicated.

One case will house steaks and chops, one chicken breasts, and the other ground beef.

The good news is that, while retailers are losing market share of beef sales to food service providers and restaurants, new items will help the industry overall. One such item under test from an Atglen-based company is called the "beef-fita," used as an appetizer that makes use of small strips from the beef shoulder, seasoned Tex-Mex style and deep-fried. Another item is the "home meal replacement," commonly known as the HMR — prepared full-serving meals that the consumer merely needs to reheat. They are working on palatability of the meat after it is reheated.

Another item, "rotisserie beef," similar to the same style of chicken in some restaurants — the slow-roasted, slow-cooked meat — is under development, according to Perrier.

Consumers want more "perceived convenience" in the food they prepare for families.

The council, according to Perrier, applauds the work of steakhouses around the country to attract many consumers and to improve the marketing of beef items. Nearly 90 percent of all restaurants still serve beef on their menu.

Tammy Weaver, industry relations/compliance manager with the Pennsylvania Beef Council, spoke about the council's dedication to improving beef marketing, now in existence for 10 years.

"It's a good program," she said. "We've been building demand for a decade."

Weaver emphasized the importance of advertising to promote the sale of beef at the supermarket. "Our society is in this rage of convenience," she said, and that factors into consumers' beef buying decisions.

She asked producers to continue to communicate their needs for marketing to the council.

Vitamix Makes Antibiotics Obsolete!
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

A dairyman's helper gave a cow an antibiotic and forgot to make a written record of it. He then went on vacation and for the next five days, the milk from 900 cows went down the drain!! The $42,000.00 lost would have bought enough Vitamix to last for years and years for that dairyman's whole herd.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamixingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last time I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.
Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix !!! (When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it.
Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.

Preston Chronister Named To York Holstein Hall Of Fame

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

SHREWSBURY (York Co.) — Retired Holstein breeder Preston Chronister is the newest inductee into the York County Holstein Association's Hall of Fame.

The honor was announced during Holstein group's annual meeting and dinner, held January 24 at Shrewsbury Fire Hall.

Chronister, a York County native, was a prominent breeder and exhibitor of registered Holsteins in the 1950s and 1960s. His family won numerous show awards with his Pleasant Site showstring, with the herd bloodlines heavily influenced by the legendary Osborndale Ivanhoe.

One of Chronister's best know homebreds was an Ivanhoe son, Pleasant Site Ivanhoe King, EX-4E. Shown from the time he was a junior calf until full-grown at two years, King was never beaten in a show. His dam, Pleasant Site King, was named a Gold Medal Dam in 1970.

Chronister and his wife, the former Evelyn Markey, married in 1941 and moved to Mechanicsburg, where he was employed on the Emmanuel Zeigler Holstein farm. In 1945, they moved to Dr. Herman Gailey's Pleasant Valley Farm, east of York. Under Chronister's influence, the farm's 13-head of milking Guernseys were gradually replaced with Holstein animals.

Over a period of years, the Chronisters purchased the herd, and in 1945, acquired the farm with its several historic buildings, including a log home and stone barn. Herd size eventually grew to 60 animals, with 36 in the milking string. The Chronisters and their seven children were active in various 4-H, cattle and dairy activities. The Pleasant Site herd was dispersed in 1971 by the Chronisters, after 28 years in the dairy business.

In addition to his beloved dairy animals and other domestic livestock, Chronister raised pedigreed beagles, Mexican burros and pheasants. He enjoyed riding and showing horses and competed for many years in regional horse open and hunter competitions.

During a three-month hiatus from farming due to a back injury, Chronister took up auctioneering. After a two-year apprenticeship, he formed his own service, Preston Chronister and Sons Auctioneering. His son, Keith, also earned his auctioneering license and along with other members of the second and third generations, continue the sale service.

Due to declining health, Chronister was unable to attend his induction into the Hall of Fame. Evelyn and five of their children were on hand to accept his award. The couple has 17 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Youth members were also saluted during the annual meeting, with awards presented to winners in the county's Junior Milk, Fat and Protein contest.

In the two-year-old category, honors were shared by siblings Greg and Michelle Walker, Thomasville. Milk production winner was Greg, with Walk-Le Star Marker Star and 2-05 305-day record of 20,757 milk, 671, fat and 633 protein record. Walk-Le Signal Buffy took the fat and protein honors for owner Michelle Walker, with a 1-11 305-day record of 19,536 milk, 787 fat and 636 protein.

Brad Walker claimed the three-year production awards with a pair of entries. Milk and protein winner was Strawberry-Acres EQM Kelly, 3-07, 305-day, 28,692 millk, 938 fat, 863 protein. High fat production honors went to Walk-Le Demand Dawn, 3-03, 305-day, 26,402 milk, 944 fat, 782 protein. Walker also took the 5-year-old honors with Warns Sexy Lady and a 5-11, 305-day lactation of 29,036 milk, 1239 fat, and 935 protein.

In the 4-year-old category, Delta junior member Jacob Hushon'a White Oak Vue Leadman Jamaca made a sweep of all three categories. In a 4-06, 305-day lactation, she produced 24,585 milk, 921 fat and 776 protein.

Dixie Doll, Glen Rock, received special recognition for the accomplishments of her homebred junior animal, Dar-Dale Nittany Pepsi. Pepsi was the 1995 Junior All-Pennsylvania Spring Yearling, tied for All-Pennsylvania honors and was nominated Junior All-American.

In his report to the club, state Holstein director Frank Feeser noted upcoming export orders for animals and related discussions on a possible state-level dues structure change. Patty Hushon, representing the national association, updated members on proposed changes to the herdbook and registry fee increases.

These directors were elected to the seats of retiring board members Phil Laughman, York, Leroy Walker, Thomasville, and Darla Doll, Glen Rock. Seated for three-year terms on the board are June Boyer, York, Leroy Bupp, Seven Valleys, and Roy Thompson, East Berlin. Other members of the nine-person board are Tom Taylor, Delta, president, April Cooper, Delta, vice president, Bridgette Bortner, Seven Valleys, secretary-treasurer, Edwin Calhoun, Glen Rock, Cindy Hall, Airville, Norma Lucabaugh, Spring Grove.

AJCA Youth Contests Deadlines

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The deadline for entering the American Jersey Cattle Association's Jersey Youth production contest and Jersey Youth achievement contest is March 1 and March 15 respectively.

The National Jersey Youth Production Contest is designed to encourage juniors to maintain production records on their animals.

The age limits for this contest are the same as those for the youth achievement contest. Records submitted for this contest are adjusted to 305-day, twice-a-day milking, and for age and month of calving. The adjusted records are then ranked by using multiple component pricing formulas to figure product value.

The achievement contest is open to youth who own one or more registered Jerseys, who are at least nine years old but not more than 19 years old. Juniors are nominated by their state Jersey organization each year.

Any Jersey junior who has competed in previous years, has not placed first, and is still eligible agewise, may also compete again.

The top 10 winners in the contest are presented with cash awards totalling $2,000 at the All American Banquet and Fun Fest held during the All American Jersey Show in Louisville, KY, in November.

Lancaster DHIA

Lancaster DHIA Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster DHIA Board recently received the good news that there were no technician changes for almost two years. Manager Jay Mylin reported, "This is the most dedicated staff we have ever had in the 26 years I have been with DHIA. In addition to our excellent veteran technicians, we have a great staff of young technicians who put forth tremendous effort to help dairymen understand their reports. While it takes extra time to provide 'How Does My Herd Compare' sheets the extra effort is appreciated by the members." The average years of service for technicians is 15 years.

Lancaster DHIA serves Lancaster, Berks, Dauphin, Chester, Lebanon and York counties. For more information call us at (717) 665-5960; FAX (717) 664-2911; E-mail - landhia@redrose.net that knowledge is meant to be shared.

Highlighting changing technologies was Pennsylvania DHIA marketing manager Tom Smith who touched on just a few technologies that will get the information to you faster and more efficiently through the use of computers.

Penn State Dairy Specialist Jud Heinrichs examined the bottom line in heifer growing when questioned breeders about average age of calving and the heifer feeding programs.

"There are two things I look at," said Heinrichs. "What is the age at calving and how big is she when she calves?"

He noted that the average age of calving has steadily declined. In a 1991 report, Holstein heifers were close to 24 months on average and Jersey heifers were close to 22 months on average.

Heinrichs also stated that the size of the heifer at first calving has a tremendous impact on total production during her first lactation.

"If she comes in small, she will grow a lot during the first lactation," he said.

In one study, Heinrichs showed that increasing the body weight of a Holstein by 100 pounds at first calving will increase milk production by 475 pounds in her first lactation.

"Ten years ago as the average age of first calving was around 27 months, people got more milk in the first lactation. Therefore the old adage was born that older heifers make more milk. I content that the older heifers were probably the larger heifers," he said. "From 1994 data we see that heifers calved at 23 months made as much milk as those calved at 28 months. Now people are seeing earlier calving heifers make as much milk as later calving heifers. That tells me that heifers are getting larger at an earlier age." Knowing how large those heifers are is also important.

"I found a lot of people could decrease the age of calving by taping the heifers and finding out exactly what they weigh. The problem with the tapes is that there is bad data from old research. If you take the time to use the weight tape, make sure the data is up to date."

To get those larger heifers, Heinrichs notes that forage testing for heifers is critical.

"Forage testing and feed programming are fundamentally important," said Heinrichs.

He emphasized his point by saying that 80 to 90 percent of a heifer's dry mater intake comes from forages. If you don't test the forage, it is essentially an unknown source of nutrients.

"When you say heifer hay, people laugh. Everyone knows what it is. You've got to feed it to someone. You can't feed it to your cows, they won't milk. Hopefully you'll only feed it to your yearling heifers. But you've got to know if it's five percent or eight or ten percent protein," said Heinrichs.

The younger calves and heifers, from three to six months, need good hay.

"Minerals are especially important as well as protein with the calves and heifers. They're laying a lot of bone structure down," Heinrichs said. "After six months they slow down in growth, the rumen is larger, so they can handle more dry matter. Also the nutrients can be less (dense) because they're consuming more dry matter."

Heinrichs also touched on the different by product feeds available, including milk replacer, and the availability of ionophores such as Rumensin or Bovatec.

"What ionophores do is change the functionality in the rumen and make it more efficient. It changes the acetic to propionic acid ratio, the animals lose less methane and make more energy. They also inhibit ammonia production," said Heinrichs.

Environment can also have a major impact on growth rate in heifers. Included in this is the feed bunk space and repair, the numbers of animals and the age spread in the group, the water availability, and the time feed is available.

Changing his focus to calf nutrition from birth to weaning, Heinrich noted that it is important to get the rumen functioning as soon as possible.

He recommends offering a palatable grain mix to the calves as early as possible and offering free choice water.

"Calves can easily be weaned at four to six weeks. Not every calf every day, " Heinrichs said, "but most can. At that time they're eating 1.5 to two pounds minimum grain per day."

Heinrich backed up his point with a study that showed that no matter what the age of weaning between three and eight weeks, the calf's growth jumped tremendously at weaning and basically evened out.

"We got the rumen going faster and ended up with the same output. There's really no logic in waiting. The longer you wait to wean, the longer you slow down rumen development," said Heinrichs.

Tying into the nutrition discussion was Penn State Graduate student Dana Putman. He focused primarily on feeding the dry cow to move them into the milking string without any problems.

"There's probably no period in a cow's life cycle where there are more challenges then pre-calving," said Putman.

This period presents a challenge because the cow's nutritional needs are high, but it's difficult to get her to eat enough. Therefore, you have a cow that's prone to disease.

"There is a lot of research focused on the transition period. We're now seeing that the more milk produced on day one of her lactation, the more milk she will produce during the entire lactation," Putman noted.

He contended that most farms could do a better job with the transition cows with very little additional investment.

"You need a good sense of what the animals are," said Putman.

The basic information needed is the body weight and body condition of the cow, her dry matter intake, a forage and feed analysis, and a feed management strategy.

He suggested breaking the dry cows into distinct groups, an early group at -60 to -22 days; a close-up group at -21 to 0 days, and a fresh cow group from 0 to 14 days.

His recommendations for feeding early dry cows included no more than 50 percent corn silage, no more than 30 percent legume forage, feeding five to 10 pounds of long forage, and three to five pounds of grain.

For the close-up cow he recommends increasing the grain to six to eight pounds per day and feeding the forage and grain from the milking cow ration. He stresses, however that you must watch the potassium and calcium levels and you should keep protein between 12 and 16 percent of dry matter intake.

After calving, Putman recommends maximizing dry matter intake, increasing grain to eight to 12 pounds per day gradually, feeding five to eight pounds of long hay and putting them on the milking cow diet.

Knowing the body weight will determine the nutrient requirements of the animal.

"The (body weight) must be measured. It's difficult to do, especially with a pregnant cow. Body weight varies tremendously. The body condition score is probably

Blue Ball National Bank Holds Farmer Seminar

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — The Blue Ball National Bank held its 14th annual agricultural seminar Tuesday in the Blue Ball Fire Hall, with about 200 people attending.

The event is held annually as an educational service for the bank's agricultural lenders, to provide an opportunity to explore some of the most relevant issues affecting the farm entrepreneur.

Bank representatives Alan Strock, an agricultural banking officer, and Kenneth Overly, vice president of its agricultural sales and service, ran the program and were joined by Melvin Pankuch, president and chief executive officer who provided closing remarks, as well as Norman Han, chairman of the board. Also helping with the program was Marlene Rice, Blue Ball National Bank's community banking officer.

Pankuch welcomed the group and gave opening remarks, as well as closing remarks.

Other speakers included Michael Peuler, CPA, CFP, the bank's senior vice president and division manager of trust services, discussed long-term financial considerations and tools. His topic was, "It's a family operation. Can we keep it that way?"

He discussed using professional services for financial planning and creating a business and estate that reflects personal desires and that helps achieve personal and family goals. He also talked about why it is important to be selective in determining from whom advice and consulting skills are sought, and how to be selective.

Also speaking was Don Weaver, who has a family farm business and who disucssed the organic products market and how a demand exists for commodities and products that meet organic-production criteria.

Weaver repeated several times that the organic market wasn't for everybody. He said that it is a strategy that requires seeking a market and also knowing how to farm without man-made chemical pesticides and fertilizers.

Also, such non-use of man-made chemicals in production

Tioga County Dairy Day

the best indicator of how efficiently you're feeding the cows."

The average body condition score, as noted by both Putman and Dairy Consultant Jim Larkin, should ideally be plus or minus three.

"You want to have the cows ready for calving when you dry them off. You don't want to change the score in the last 60 days," said Putman. "Heavier cows present a management challenge. They're the ones who come down with ketosis of a DA."

Larkin agreed and added that body condition scores range from one (very thin) to five (extremely fat).

"The number three cow is the one we want to have all the time with the exception of the dry cow that we want to have a little heavier," said Larkin.

Areas assessed are the loin area, the thurl and tailhead. A score 1 animal has no fat and bones are distinct. A score two animal has no extra fat and you can see a distinct "V" in the loin. In a score three cow you begin to see a little fat layer over the loin and over the hooks and pins. There is no distinct "V" in the loin area. In cows that score four and five there is progressively more and more of a fat layer on the loin, hooks and pins and the tailhead is generally filled in.

"I don't like thin cows, but if I had to err on one side or the other, I'd take a cow that's a little bit thinner than one that's a little heavier," Larkin explained.

The Dairy Day topics were selected from suggestions made by Tioga County farmers and organized by Tioga County extension agent Craig Williams.

"Tioga County Dairy Day is planned to make your business more profitable," said Williams.

Human nutrition was not ignored at Dairy Day either, as the many exhibitors and industry representatives sponsored an all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast to start the day and a dairy break including milk punch and cheese served by Tioga County Dairy Princess and Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Lisa Fitch.

Attend State Grazing Conference

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The 1997 Pennsylvania Grazing Conference features experienced grazers from Florida to Canada and from throughout the state. They will be sharing their experience and a wealth of helpful information with other livestock and dairy producers, whether they be new or experienced grazers, or whether they have large or small herds and flocks. The event will be held March 5-6 at The Embers, Carlisle.

On Wednesday, the featured speaker will be Bryan Strzelec of the large Piedmont Dairy in Floriday. He will be discussing their experience of transitioning a large dairy herd to a grazing management system and the economics involved. He'll also address heat stress and environmental concerns.

The featured speaker on Thursday at this year's conference is Dr. Ann Clark from Guelph, Ontario, Canada. She will be sharing her experience of producing beef on pasture. Her topics are "Meat Production from Pastured Beef and Dairy Cattle — Profitability and Management" and "Making the Grade with Beef on Pasture."

Throughout the two-day conference, people will have the opportunity to attend a variety of breakout sessions and presentations, and hear producer panelists and university personnel address topics of interest to them, and to visit the trade show. Conference proceedings will be available. Wednesday's topics include grazing larger herds, economics, paddock layout, fencing, water systems, laneways, manure and fertility management, sources of pasture information and heat stress.

Topics on Thursday include reproductive management, fence chargers, meat production from beef and dairy cattle, making beef grade on pasture, basic pasture agronomics, supplemental feeding of dairy cattle, and budgeting your feed supplies.

The Pennsylvania Grazing Conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Grazing Research and Education Center and the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council.

For lodging reservations at The Embers, call The Embers by February 20 (1-800-692-7315) and mention that you will be attending the grazing conference.

Conference registration is limited to about 300 people. Registration costs are as follows: If registered by February 20, the fee for the first person is $65 for 2 days and $45 for 1 day. For each additional guest, the fee is $35 for 2 days and $20 for 1 day. If registered after February 20, the fee for the first person is $85 for 2 days and $55 for 1 day. For additional guests, it is $45 for 2 days and $25 for 1 day. Checks should be made payable to Agri Extension Special Fund and mailed to Grazing Research and Education Center, 116 ASI Bldg., Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802-3504.

Senate Reappoints Wenger Ag Chairman

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36) has been reappointed vice chairman of the state Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee and has retained his seat on the powerful Appropriations Committee.

Senate President Pro Tempore Robert C. Jubelirer (R-30), who assigns committee memberships, said Wenger's past leadership on agriculture issues earned him a continued leadership role on the committee.

"From creating the state's Farmland Preservation Program to working to develop the new Nutrient Management Program, Sen. Wenger has been a leader on issues affecting farmers and a strong advocate on their behalf," Jubelirer said.

Wenger added that he was pleased that he will also continue to serve on the Senate Appropriations Committee, which handles all legislation dealing with state expenditures and is instrumental in crafting the multi-billion-dollar state budget.

"As a fiscal conservative, I like to have a voice in how taxpayers' money is spent," Wenger said. "I consider the development of the state budget to be the most important thing the Legislature does each year."

Wenger does not chair a committee because he serves as caucus secretary for the Senate Republicans, a member of the caucus leadership team. Caucus leaders are not normally assigned chairmanships.

However, Wenger has also been assigned to serve on the Senate Banking and Insurance Committee, the Labor and Industry Committee, and the State Government Committee.

"This is the first time I will be serving on the Banking and Insurance Committee," Wenger said. "I'm looking forward to the new challenge."

Pa.DHIA Plans Corporate Meeting

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association has finalized its program for the ninth annual meeting of the corporation to be held on Feb. 13 and 14 at the Days Inn Penn State, in State College.

The program is split, with the annual meeting to be held Feb. 14, while educational programs start during the previous evening.

At 7 p.m., Feb. 13, James Boyer, Pa.DHIA data processing director, is to present a workshop on computer hardware and software.

Specifically, he is to focus on information needed before buying a computer and what equipment or programing is needed in order to download dairy herd information from the Pa.DHIA mainframe computer to the computer at home.

Another workshop is to be presented by Boyer, following the annual meeting the next day. That workshop is to focus on the Internet, and is to be a hands-on seminar.

Specifically, Boyer is to teach what is needed for accessing the Internet, accessing Pa.DHIA through the Internet, and how to download Pa.DHIA herd data into a home computer through the Internet.

According to Dixie Burris, space is limited for the workshops and they are being offered on a first-come, first-served basis. In order to participate, call Burris immediately at 1-800-344-8378.

The annual corporate meeting is set to start with a breakfast buffet at 7:15 a.m., followed by a general session.

Presiding over the meeting is to be Pa.DHIA Vice President Norm Hershey, a dairyman from Lancaster County.

Pa.DHIA President Lane Sollenberger, a dairyman from Franklin County, is to provide a welcome and call to order.

Dave Dowler, an agricultural and dairy extension agent from Mercer County, is to provide a presentation on new trends in managing feed stuffs.

The special guest speaker is to be James Ferguson, VMD, an associate professor with the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine. He is to speak about true protein and milk urea nitrogen and how to use it to better manage a dairy herd.

In addition, there is to be a business meeting, finance report, and reports from the Data Processing Committee, General Manager David Slusser, the Resolution Committee, and the president.

In addition, Sonny Meyerhoffer, director to the National DHIA is to report on activities there.

Following the business meeting and reports, an awards luncheon is scheduled to be held at the Day's Inn with Patty McMurray, from Eighty-Four, scheduled to serve as master of ceremonies. State Dairy Princess Angela Werley is scheduled to be guest speaker. Entertainment has also been scheduled.

An alternative program has been organized for interested spouses. Janice Derr is to lead the group making money roses and woodward angels, playing games and making crafts. In addition, there are opportunities to shop in downtown State College, at the Nittany Mall nearby, or at some of the Penn State Campus stores.

Also being offered are tours of the Pa.DHIA Service Building, and the Central Milk Testing Laboratory.

must be sustained for three years, by some organic certification standards.

Organic certification standards exist currently through the development and self-determination of producer groups.

There are several with different organic certification standards, because several different certification groups have emerged in different areas of the nation to supply their respective local "organic" market.

In the developing national and international "organic" market, certification standards and definitions need to be standardized to provide consumers with some ability to determine what they are purchasing.

Though the 1990 Farm Bill had called for the establishment of federal regulations and standards for a nationwide organic certification program, consensus has yet to be reached among the different groups promoting their own standards.

As is generally true with emerging markets that eventually require meeting a set of standards, businesses that start supplying demand first under self-imposed sets of standards can enjoy short-term and long-term benefits should those self-imposed standards become the model for government standards imposed on would-be competitors.

In other words, with respect to the organic foods industry, the group whose members' certification standards fall within eventual federal standards can be expected to enjoy first shot at supplying the market under those conditions.

In business, especially with a new business niche, first positioning can translate into market dominance and the largest share of profits.

While Weaver didn't have to explain that to the group, he said that the organic industry does expect that certification standards should be settled this year and that, in the meantime, some certification standards are becoming more accepted and more widely acknowledged by producers and consumers.

Those who may already be producing with minimal chemical inputs may have a good chance of becoming more quickly certified and in good position for when federal standards become approved.

But even if federal certification standards don't become approved for years, the markets exist now, and it requires time — up to a year or several years — to have an operation deemed "organic."

Weaver displayed a variety of food products that he purchased locally, ranging from individually labeled "organic" eggs to organic milk, potatoes, corn, and roasted soybeans. He had purchased both "organic" and non-organic product and compared prices.

Generally, the price for organic foods was double that for foods produced according to existing government and industry health standards.

The cost of production for organic foods can be lower, depending on how diversified a producer can be, or how diversified he is required to be.

For example, to produce organic milk — $1.19 a quart for regular 3.5-percent milk versus $2.39 per quart for "organic" milk — no antibiotics can be used to treat the cows and all the food the cows receive must also have been raised organically and have been certified organic.

The cost of "organic" feeds is about twice that for regular feeds. Feeding all purchased organic feeds may not provide any financial incentive to produce organic milk, however, if the same farmer can produce his own certified organic feeds and then turn that into organic milk, the potential is their for a much higher return than in the general market.

In some cases organic prices can fluctuate and prices don't reflect effort of production. He exhibited two bags of spinich and the price of the organic product was less than the regular market product.

He said that a local OCIA chapter has scheduled a meeting on March 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Yoder's Restaurant.

H. Louis Moore, well-known Penn State University professor emeritus or agricultural economics, discussed the general outlook for agriculture.

In short, Moore said the outlook for agriculture in Pennsylvania was good, and that grain prices can be expected to remain somewhat stable.

Exporting poultry, beef and pork has grown substantially over the past half-decade and represents a continued opportunity to keep prices strong.

Glenn Shirk, county extension agent, gave a presentation on considerations for approaching the farm as a business, and distributed a paper he wrote last April on dairy farm management basices.

Conservation plans are used on both farms with many feet of subsurface drainage and terraces in place to conserve nutrients and water. These practices have earned DEW Farms the award of the Soil Conservation Service. Getty Acres Farm has been recognized for its work in the Chesapeake Bay Program, along with two conservation awards.

The dairy has 210 cows plus replacements and are milked three times a day on a turnstyle parlor. All bulls are raised as steers to better use facilities and crops. At the present time there are 240 steers on feed. A TMR is used in feeding the herd. Timothy hay is used for feeding and sale as mulch hay to Chester County. The mulch hay operation comes in a close second to the dairy cows. It is baled in 4 foot x 4 foot x 8 foot bales for better transporting and faster baling.

Dan is active in his young farmer chapter and also the state executive committee, serving as regional vice president. Laurel works at the Federal Communications Commission and has recently opened a shop called "Bear & Co." Dan is a member of the Bethel Mennonite Church. According to Tom Oyler, "Dan recognizes the importance of planning and innovation, both short-term and for future activities."

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Over 30 Region IV

David and Bea Waybright live in Gettysburg. David is a member of Gettysburg Young Farmers, whose advisor is Tom Oyler.

The farm includes 635 acres with an additional 270 acres rented. Main crops are corn for silage, grain and ear, wheat, barley, alfalfa, and grass hay.

In 1995, David's father Paul Waybright passed away, leaving David as sole owner of the farm operation. Crop acres are kept in high state of fertility with conservation practices and nutrient management. Drain tile, terraces, and sod waterways are used where needed.

The farm has 162 cows plus replacement animals and 150 steers. Milk is sold to Mid-America Dairy Cooperative. The steers are sold to a local butcher shop.

Cows are fed with computer feeds for concentrate and milked in a modern parlor with automatic takeoffs and indexing. Bunker silos and drive-along feed bunks make taking care of cattle more efficient.

David belongs to the Mount Joy Lutheran Church, is active in his dairy cooperative, and is a 4-H leader.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Over 30 Region VII

Kenneth and Denise Sanner with son Brett live in Kutztown and are members of Kutztown Young Farmers, with Jon Stutzman, adviser.

They rent the family farm from Ken's parents. It includes 300 acres. The main crops are corn for silage and grain, alfalfa, wheat and soybeans. A mixture of tillage practices are used to conserve soil and obtain maximum yields. Manure storage is used to reduce fertilizer costs and increase profits. Computer records using PFB system help them keep a close eye on monthly business records.

The dairy herd of 89 cows are 95 percent registered Holsteins and are milked in a double — 4 herringbone parlor. Heifers and calves for replacements and breeding stock sales number 80. Cows are housed in free stalls with TMR feeding, with a computer feeder providing the top dress. A new heifer barn was erected to improve growth and reduce labor.

Ken and Denise are both active in their respective Jaycee chapters. They are active in Atlantic Dairy Cooperative on the Young Cooperator committee. Denise works full time as an executive secretary at East Penn Manufacturing. Ken is involved in his young farmer chapter, Berks County DHIA, Sire Power, and Agway.

Outstanding Community Service Award Region VII

George and Pearl Moyer live in Myerstown. They have four children — Curtis, Ralph, Mark and Julie. George belongs to Tulpehocken Young Farmers, whose adviser is Christine Williams.

Dairy and crops are the main enterprises. The dairy was sold to son Ralph with some acreage rented to him. The remainder of the farm is cropped with corn, alfalfa, soybeans, and wheat.

George is involved in many safety meetings each year, having lost a portion of his left leg in a harvesting accident. He assists at county and other events where youth are taught safety on the farm.

Being an advocate of land use and preservation, George is actively involved in his local ag security area, the county land preservation board, and the county planning comission.

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a large part of his work. George is also involved in the Pennsylvania Ag Democrats and is on Congressman Holden's Advisory Committee.

George and Pearl are both active in the Salem U.C.C., where George is a Sunday school discussion leader.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Under 30 State Winner

Gary and Lisa Krall are from Lebanon. They have one child, Jenny, with another on the way. Gary belongs to Cedar Crest Chapter, whose adviser is Richard Moore.

They lease the farm from Gary's parents, and rent 160 acres with the main crops of corn for silage and grain, alfalfa, soybeans, rye, and grass hay. Most alfalfa is made as haylage; rye is double-cropped to increase forage yield. Soybeans are fed to reduce protein costs.

Gary works with his brother and shares equipment used for field work to reduce investment. A conservation plan is used, along with manure storage to obtain maximum yields at the least cost.

The dairy has 75 cows with 60 replacements. Present herd average is more than 20,000 pounds milk. A TMR, which includes corn silage, haylage, high moisture ear corn, roasted soybeans, and supplement is used to feed the herd. Hooves are trimmed three to four times a year. All cows and heifers are bred A.I. with Gary doing the breeding. A calf condo was recenlty built to better care for calves. To improve cow comfort, 30 freestalls were added.

Gary is active in Cedar Crest Young Farmers, having been president and on the executive committee, along with many other farm organizations. Gary and Lisa are youth advisers in the Midway Church of the Brethren.

Gary is president of the young adult class.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Over 30 Region V

Barry and Diane Bittner live in Berlin with children Lance David and Kevin. Barry belongs to the Berlin-Brothersvalley Young Farmers with Doyle Paul, adviser.

The 300-acre farm they own has been in the family for five generations. They purchased the farm two years ago from Barry's parents when they retired. The main crops include corn for grain and silage, oats, alfalfa and timothy hay.

Conservation is important having both hills in contour strips and low-lying fields that required drainage.

The dairy herd contains 38 cows and 22 replacements. When Barry and Diane purchased the farm, many improvements were needed in the barn. The cow stable was remodeled, new milkers installed, and a new bulk tank. With the many improvements, production has been increasing slowly.

Because of limited space, some heifers are sold to a neighbor as calves with the option to buy them back when they freshen.

Barry and Diane are members of the Beachdale Church of the Brethren and are active in their young farmer chapter. Diane drives a school bus.

Outstanding Community Service Award State Winner

Thomas and Leanne Calvert of Berlin are members of the Berlin Brothersvalley Young Farmers, whose adviser is Doyle Paul. They have two grown children. Both Tom and Leanne grew up on sheep farms and both had sheep as 4-H projects.

Shober Farm is their home, consisting of 300 acres — 50 acres are cropped and 65 acres are grazed. Tom farms with his brother-in-law Larry Shober. Sheep is the main enterprise with 110 brood mares. All are intenstively grazed.

Tom and Leanne are both very involved in the Trinity United Church of Christ. Serving on many committees and singing in the choir, Tom is also on the Penn West Conference, United Church of Christ board of directors.

Leanne is a school teacher in the Berlin Brothersvalley School District, involved in many school organizations.

Tom works as a pasture management/grazing specialist for the NRCS and is involved in many cooperative extension committees and conservation initiatives.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Over 30 State Winner

David and Judy Gerhart are from New Providence and are members of the Solanco Chapter, with Ron Althoff, adviser. They have three children.

The farm they live on was originally owned by Dave's great-grandfather. Farming 148 acres with 50 being rented, the main crops include corn, alfalfa, grass, and rye. Corn is for grain and silage. Rye is used as ryelage.

Conservation practices are very important, having sloped fields and some wetland. The barn's location near a stream creates special concerns for manure storage and barnyard runoff.

The milking herd consists of 52 Holsteins in tie stalls and 45 replacements. Dave tries to keep the barn full of cows at all times to increase production efficiency. A TMR mixer was installed in 1993. Rubber mats and tunnel ventilation provide cow comfort. Milk is marketed through Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Dave and Judy are both active in the Faith Reformed Presbyterian Church. They were Maryland-Virginia Outstanding Young Cooperators in 1992 and were on the National Young Cooperators Advisory Council. Dave is active in his local young farmers chapter, serving as president-elect. Judy has a part-time job during the tax season to provide resources for their children's Christian school tuition. Dave enjoys farming and hopes to pass the farm on to his children, providing them with a good basis to continue.

Outstanding Young Adult Farmer Under 30 Region II

Thomas Arrowsmith, Peach Bottom, is this year's Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 from the Solanco Chapter, with Ron Althoff, adviser.

Tom farms in partnership with his father and is working toward ownership of the family farm. Tom is responsible for the care and feeding of all animals and shares fieldwork and milking with his parents.

The farm contains 80 acres, with corn, alfalfa-grass hay, and some double-crop rye the main crops. With limited acres maximum production from all acres is necessary. Grass is planted with alfalfa to increase yield. First, second, and fourth cuttings are round-baled and wrapped for haylage. Third cutting is baled as dry hay. Rye is used for pasture, forage, or straw.

The milking herd consists of 57 registered Jerseys and about 60 replacements. The rolling herd average is 14,851 pounds milk with a 5 percent fat test and 3.9 percent protein. There are 10 cows classified Excellent in the present herd.

Cows are fed a TMR with corn silage, ground shelled corn, and supplement four times a day. High producers are fed a topdress.

Tom enjoys breeding and showing quality Jersey cattle. He began his judging career in 4-H and FFA and still enjoys judging at shows. He would like to sell breeding cattle and export quality animals in the future.

Outstanding Adviser

The Outstanding Adviser this year is Ron Althoff from the Solanco Chapter.

Althoff, a Penn State graduate, has been with the Solanco School District since 1973 and has been the adviser for the Solanco Chapter since 1978. He lives outside Quarryville with his wife, Deb, and their two sons.

Althoff is a very dedicated adviser. He spends a lot of time working on the chapter's projects. He can be found doing nitrogen tests, computing corn yields, using a particle separator, or reading a compaction meter. He'll see that a member gets the chapter's computer to use or he'll roast a pig for the picnic.

Need to know if you have leafhoppers in your alfalfa or rootworm beetles in your corn? Just call and he'll come out, net in hand, to find out for you. Althoff also taught a market master course to teach young farmers marketing skills.

Under Althoff's guidance, the Solanco Chapter has hosted state summer and winter conventions and the chapter has had many state officers and contest winners. He has helped select the teachers who have participated in the Ag in the Classroom project sponsored by the Solanco Chapter. He has served on many committees at the state level and is on the state executive board.

Jersey Youth Awards

LIBERTY (Tioga Co.) — It's the middle of winter. School activities are in full swing. Homework never stops, and the cows in the barn still need to be milked and fed.

Yes, schedules are full, but now is also the time to apply for one of several awards being presented by the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association (PJCA). All Jersey youth between the ages of nine and 19 who owned a jersey calf, heifer or cow during 1996 are eligible for one of several awards or scholarships.

First year Jersey enthusiasts are invited to compete for the First Year Project Award. To be eligible for this award, applicants must be between the ages of eight and 12 and be a member of an organized 4-H club. To enter the contest, submit the official project record book along with a handwritten story entitled "My First Jersey Project Year."

The PJCA will select outstanding Jersey achievers in two divisions for the Youth Achievement Award. All applicants must be the owners of one or more registered Jerseys. A junior award will be presented to the top achiever in the nine to 13 age category and the senior award will be given to the winner in the 14 to 19 age group.

Jersey youth of all ages are invited to compete in the Scrapbook Contest. Scrapbooks submitted are to include the contestant's Jersey Project(s) for 1996. Scrapbooks will be evaluated on the quality and quantity of the contest.

Yet another contest for Jersey enthusiasts to enter is the Youth Production Contest. Jersey Juniors can nominate their registered animals that are on offical DHI or DHIA test by submitting offical cow records issued between 1/1/96 and 12/31/96. This form is required to give officials a 305-day 2X mature equivalent value for the records submitted.

Finally, Jersey Youth who are attending college or who are high school seniors planning to enroll in college within one year of high school graduation can compete for one of two $200 scholarships. Applicants must have been actively involved with Jersey Cattle for at least two years. Previous scholarship winners are eligible to reapply for these scholarships.

Contest winners will receive awards and are recognized at the PJCA annual meeting in the spring.

Applications are due by Feb. 15, and should be forwarded to Michelle Ryan, youth director, 301 North Progress Ave., Harrisburg, PA 17109. For applications and more information contact Michelle at (717) 541-1407.

Farm Show Banquet To Honor Buyers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The first annual state Farm Show Buyer Appreciation Banquet is scheduled Thursday, April 10 at the Farm Show Complex cafeteria at 6:30 p.m.

The banquet will honor those who purchased animals from the junior livestock shows at the sale held Thursday, Jan. 16 in the Farm Show small arena.

According to Joan Grim, member of the sale and scholarship committees and banquet coordinator, the banquet is open to any buyers as well as extension agents who participated in the junior shows and those who helped conduct the show and sale. Also invited are all the junior exhibitors and their families who showed animals at this year's Farm Show.

Grim noted that they are hoping a well-known TV personality will agree to speak at the event.

Importantly, she said, "We want to recognize the grand champion buyers by holding a special recognition for them."

The first-annual banquet will honor all the buyers and champion exhibitors at the show.

"We want to make this the buyer's night," Grim said.

Reservations are required. Contact Fred Rudy, Dauphin County extension agent, for reservations and information about the banquet, at (717) 921-8803.

Well, our dairy farmers manage and care for herds of animals which provide a large food supply to this country.

According to our government, it is okay for those involved in the so-called support businesses to charge more than enough for their livelihood (ie. "what the market will bear"). These costs have more than doubled, even quadrupled, in the same amount of time (fifteen years +) that has seen no increase in the price received for the raw milk, thus leaving the dairy farmer financially strapped. Today, what the government is doing to the American dairy farmer by dropping the amount paid per 100 wt. of milk is like asking the average consumer to go to the bank and take money out of his own savings account in order to get paid on the job.

We can talk about the injustices in the labor forces in China and the 3rd World Countries etc., but we have only to look in our own backyards on the dairy farm and at the paltry compensation paid to the farmer and set by our own U.S. government.

Serious consideration must be given to this situation by those who have been placed in the position of responsibility. Taking on meaningful action is as criminal as taking deliberate irresponsible action.

Messick Farm Equipment, Inc.

Elizabethtown, PA

Messick Farm Equipment's beginnings go back to November 26, 1952, when two brothers, Marlin and Merville Messick broke ground and erected a new building along Route 230, three miles north of Elizabethtown.

The dealership officially opened on February 1, 1953, with Marlin as Shop Manager, and Merville handling both the sales and parts department.

Two years later a full-time salesman and one additional mechanic were hired, and in 1962 an addition was built to the existing building, housing a showroom and additional parts area.

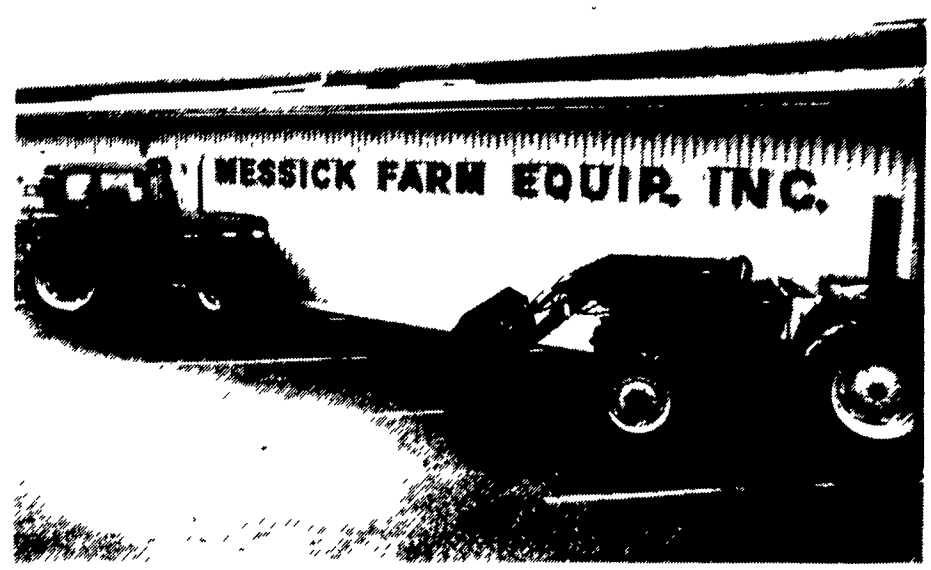
The successful Messick enterprise once again outgrew its shell, and a new 21-acre site was purchased at the present location along Route 283, at the Rheems Exit, Elizabethtown.

With the new facilities providing 7,200 square feet of shop space, and 6,000 square feet of showroom, Messick celebrated its grand opening in February of 1977. Messicks have since expanded the building twice and have built an additional warehouse.

Today Messick attributes much of its growth to its 49 employees, including 18 mechanics, 14 partsmen, 5 salesmen, and four office personnel.

Factory trained as well as privately instructed, Messick's servicemen have years of experience in the agricultural field. The firm's parts department has experience in providing customers with the correctt parts as quickly as possible.

To Messick's staff, the idea of simply making a sale, is secondary to their goal of providing the customer with the correct equipment to get the job done. They are committed to keeping their customers up and running with over 1 million dollars in parts inventory.



Messicks has a 1-800 number, 1-800-222-3373, also a fax number, 717-367-6662, to be able to provide their services to the customers. They ship and receive by UPS, Federal Express, RPS, Airborne, Motortruck, and via their own 'on the farm' Parts Route Delivery/Sales Truck. Their hours are 7:30-5:00, Monday-Friday, and 7:30-12:00 on Saturdays.

Warm and caressing, the sunshine coaxes the greening grass and touches delicate blooms of soft color.

Garden veggies await harvest, succulent and tasty with all those important vitamins and minerals disguised by their sheer deliciousness.

And nary a weed peeks up through thick stands of plant growth of picture perfection.

Yes, it's so. It really is. All there, in brilliant color — in the seed catalogs. In stunning color and described with the most appealing of phrases: masses of long-lasting blooms ... a standout in your garden ... fabulous in the kitchen ... sweetest ever ... outstanding yields ... extaordinary rich flavor.

In your dreams, I remind myself, plopping the stack of seed catalogs back on the coffee table. Remember the endless rain of last summer? Remember the rampant grass that choked out the geraniums and tangled the asparagus patch? Remember the cantaloupes that drowned and the gladioli bulbs that rotted in the ground?

Boy, good thing we gardeners have such selective memories. We prefer to recall the juicy, crisp Sugar Baby watermelons, the lovely, tender Red Sails lettuce, tasty tomatoes and perky jalapeno peppers.

Gardeners are undying optimists. This year — by gosh — this year will be different. And — by gosh — each year is different.

So with the slightly lengthening days, brighter sunshine and the visions of fresh veggies and sweet-smelling bouquets brought on by wishing with seed catalogs, it was inevitable. The spring fever bug attacked with a vengeance at my absolute most vulnerable spot — standing in a garden center aisle, face-to-face with racks of seed displays.

Understand, now, I fought it for awhile. Really I did. Walked away. Came back. Circled the displays, eyeing the varieties. Debated that I could order from the stack of catalogs waiting at home.

"But you need the Early Girl tomato seeds," urged the other half of my brain. "Need to get them started so you can get them out just as early as possible. Don't you want June tomatoes? And the final teasing thought: "It might be an early spring."

Resolve crumbled. Into the cart went the tomato seeds. Followed by a couple of others. A few steps away, what should turn up but another display of competitor's seed packets, sending the green thumb into packet-pickin' overdrive.

Half the brain still argued. Sure, there were a dozen seed catalogs in the stack at home. And they listed varieties that I also wanted but was not going to find in these display racks, so mail orders would still be necessary. It was no use. Into the cart went more packets.

Having gotten into the spirit, a list from a catalog was in final preparation less than 24 hours later. A quick inventory of seeds left from last year confirmed what I had begun to suspect — once I though about it — and several items on the list could be eliminated.

Admittedly, this seed packet impulse-buying is pretty poor planning. But it's a cheap addiction. Seeds are a wonderful bargain when you compare the cost to what's involved producing them and what the potential yields are.

Taking inventory of my impulse-bought seed packs. I scratched off the original mail order list several of the items scrawled there. Including sweet peas.

Somehow, not paying attention during the seed buying binge, I'd already acquired two packs of those. One of them grows 20-foot vines of the flowering peas.

Maybe I can train them to grow up the sides of a silo.

How About Bidding On A Hedgehog?

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Interested in purchasing a baby hedgehog?

Then the Lancaster County 4-H Annual Benefit Auction to be held at the Farm and Home Center on Saturday, Feb. 15, is the place to go.

If the hedgehog doesn't entice you to attend this fun-filled auction, there are plenty of other unusual items to pique your interest. How about some emu meat or perhaps some rhea meat? How about bidding on an airplane ride?

Maybe you're faint of heart and wary of sinking your dollars into the unusual. Don't despair. The benefit auction at 1383 Arcadia Road (just off Route 72) in Lancaster has plenty for the traditional auction goer. Cookbooks, tools, restaurant certificates, Winross trucks, toys, wall hangings and a quilt are a few of the traditional offerings. Of course, plenty of food will be available throughout the sale that starts at 9:30 a.m.

The annual auction is the place for 4-H'ers to get set for the upcoming show year. They can purchase top quality show lambs from pretigious breeders such as George Lewis, Abe Landis, and Steve Landis or hogs donated by Jim Parlett, Henry Holloway, David Holloway, and White Oak Mills. Lead ropes, horse halters, shovels, and similar basics needed by 4-H showmen will go over the auction block.

Yearning for some relaxing entertainment? Bid on tickets for the Fulton Opera House, Dutch Apple Theatre, or the Rainbow Dinner Theater.

Maybe it's just a dinner out that interests you. Plenty of certificates will go the highest bidder for Doc Holliday's Steakhouse, Country Table Restaurant, Kreider Farm Family Restaurant, Hoss's Steak and Sea House, and more.

Garden supplies such as fertilizer, plant food, mulch, wood shavings, hoes and so forth will be sold.

Dr. Zoann Parker, 4-H extension agent, said the funds raised at the annual auction provide 50 percent of the money needed for every major 4-H event held throughout the year for the county's 4,000 members. Monies are used for the purchase of educational materials, entry fees to events, transportation costs, and other 4-H expenses.

With the help of Dr. Zoann Parker, 4-H extension agent, Julie Snyder, 16-year-old 4-H Ambassador from Ephrata, displays donated items for the upcoming Lancaster County 4-H Annual Benefit Auction to be held February 15, starting at 9:30 a.m.

"We want to keep 4-H affordable for all families," said Parker, who promises to have something for everyone at the auction.

Getting back to the hedgehog, Parker said that the nine-week-old hedgehog makes a wonderful pet for children who are 10 years old and older. Hedgehogs are the latest rage in exotic pets. Since hedgehogs eat catfood and can be housed in aquariums or a cage with lid, they are considered economical and easy-to-care for pets. They love to be held and cuddled.

For more information or to donate items for the auction, contact the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension office at (717) 394-6851.

Yahweh Dairy Farm Is Promise Land For Weiderspahns

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

COCHRANTON (Crawford Co.) — Yahweh Dairy Farm is home for Pennsylvania Alternate Merideth Ann Weiderspahn.

Because "Yahweh" means God in Hebrew, people often express curiosity about the farm's name. The Weiderspahns' decision to incorporate the name into their farm stems from the family's saga in finding their "Promise Land," or farm, which parallels to the bibilical account of the Israelites awaiting their Promise Land.

Merideth said that her dad purchased his first cow when she was three years old. Because they did not live on a farm, the cow was housed in the garage. Her dad liked cows so much, he purchased three more and the family moved to a small rented farm while waiting for their home to be sold. The Weiderspahns milked with a bucket and gave the milk to family and friends. After five years of attempting to sell their A-frame home and looking at 40 farms, the family finally found exactly what they wanted in their 270-acre farm in Cochranton.

"We dedicated the farm back to God because we felt like the Israelites must have felt after 40 years of looking for their Promised Land," Merideth explained.

God, family, and farm are all entertwined for this poised 17-year-old, who believes her role as dairy princess is possible because of her supportive family, who includes her parents, Francis and Cheryl, and 14-year-old brother Nathan.

The family togetherness extends to the previous generation. After Merideth's family had purchased the farm, her grandparents left their Florida retirement community to purchase a farm down the road from Merideth's. Since then, her grandmother has passed away but her grandfather remains active in farming. Heifers, calves, and chickens are kept at her grandfather's farm while the mixed herd of 35 milking Holsteins and Jerseys are kept at Yahweh.

Merideth said that her mother did not grow up on a farm. At first she had a difficult adjustment, but now is a big fan of dairying and is eager to do things on the farm.

Merideth has been milking cows since she was eight years old. On a regular basis, she continues to help with feeding and washing the bulk milk tank.

"I enjoy washing the bulk tank because I have time to think while I'm doing it," Merideth said of the 20 minute chore.

Becoming a dairy princess was no haphazard decision for Merideth who always admired the county dairy princesses since she was little. When she was old enough to be eligible, Merideth served as a dairy maid for three years. This experience made her even more eager to compete for the dairy princess in her county.

Merideth's mother joined the county dairy promotion committee about the same time Merideth first became a dairy maid. Her mother is now co-chairman of the committee and books appearances for Merideth and the five dairy maids in the county.

"Every body at school and church has been very supportive of my role as dairy princess. They often offer to drive me to appearances," Merideth said.

Pa. 1st Alternate Dairy Princess Merideth Weiderspahn spreads the word that milk is packed with nine essential nutrients that help the body with everything from vision to regulating blood pressure, and maintaining strong bones and teeth.

Life seems relatively safe in her hometown of Cochranton where the biggest outrage to hit the the sparsely populated area is "a dog biting a kid," Merideth said.

Compared to most Pennsylvanian schools, the Cochranton Junior Senior High School where Merideth attends is a bit small. With only 70 students in the senior class, everyone knows each other.

"The advantage is that one never feels lonely, but the disadvantage is that everyone knows everything about everybody. And sometimes that includes things that you'd rather not know," Merideth said.

Her classmates are supportive of her role as dairy princess. To devote more time to dairy promotion, Merideth gave up cheerleading. But she manages to continue her membership in the school's Bible club, art club, and the yearbook staff where she is in charge of special effects.

Her art ability is no doubt inherited from her mother.

"She's very creative," Merideth said of her mother who started a business called Homestead Specialties about one year ago. "She makes wearable art design patterns for vests, jumpers, collars, and children."

Her mother has a distributor who sells her patterns. For information or a brochure about Homestead Specialties, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to 1883 State Road, Cochranton, PA 16314.

"When I was little, my mother always made me these cute little outfits," said Merideth who is now an accomplished seamstress herself.

Through 4-H sewing club, Merideth has advanced to state sewing competition every year since she was old enough to join. This past year, she entered her prom dress.

"I always have this fear of going to the prom and seeing three other dresses like mine. If I make it myself, I don't need to worry," she said.

Although Merideth is a capable seamtress, she is grateful that her mom continues to alter clothing for her.

In addition to sewing club, Merideth is also active in the 4-H dairy club.

Responsibilities as the state alternate dairy princess requires Merideth to travel to many places across the state.

"I've been visiting a lot of areas I've never been to before," she said.

In fact, this year was the first time that Merideth has ever visited the Pennsylvania Farm Show, which is a six-hour drive from her home.

Although Merideth has always loved children, her decision to become an elementary school teacher was an outgrowth of her dairy promotion duties.

As dairy princess, she often visits elementary schools to tell them about the dairy industry.

"Kids are so eager to learn, and they are so innocent," Merideth said.

After graduation, Merideth plans to attend Geneva College in Beaver Falls.

"I wanted to attend a small Christian college that wasn't so far away from home," Merideth said of selecting the college that is about a two-hour drive from her home.

Merideth is involved in helping with the Pioneer Club, the church youth group planning committee, nursery and was a former Sunday school teacher at the family's church.

Of her 14-year-old brother, Merideth said sibling bickering is part of her life, "but we always help each other."

Recently her brother broke both of his arms, which means he requires lots of assistance. Merideth writes down the answers for his home work assignments.

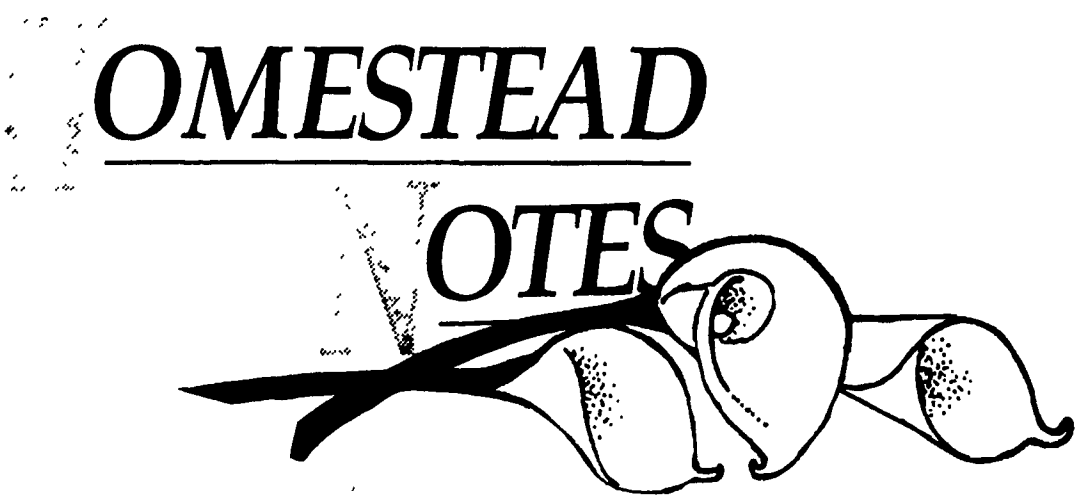
The Weiderspahns have hosted Japanese students for the past three summers. This past year, a mother, daughter, and son from Japan lived with them.

"At first we used lots of sign language," Merideth said of the difficulty in communicating. By the end of the summer the family was fluent in English.

The Japanese family was amazed at the abundance of milk and the low milk prices in the states. In Japan, cows are primarily only seen at the zoo because crowded conditions have ruled out farms. However, the Japanese do eat rice and rose ice cream.

Merideth said that by the end of the summer, she became like a sister to the Japanese girl who plans to move to the Weiderspahn's Yahweh Dairy Farm while attending college in the states.

Home for the Weiderspahns is Yahweh Dairy Farm located in Crawford County. When Merideth was three years old, her dad brought his first cow, which was kept in the garage since they did not have a barn. The family now owns 70 cows and a 270-acre farm in Cochranton.



When They Defy Me

One of the most difficult questions that parents approach me with is what to do when their children blatantly defy them. The dictionary defines defiance as "the act of resisting boldy and openly, daring." This is not the uncomfortable mistake or the careless oversight. This is a deliberate act of disobedience. At least that's what parents conclude.

According to Stan Turecki, the author of Difficult Children, when this happens, parents can feel as if they've lost their authority and that the child no longer listens to them. This can reduce discipline problems. It is important for the parent to look at the situation calmly and to not jump to the conclusion that the child is intentionally breaking a rule just to "get at" him.

Several questions to ask to help sort this out are:

•Does my child have a legitimate compalint or is she just looking for a fight?

•Is the behavior really bad/risky for the individual or do I just want him to act the way I do/say?

•If I "win" will I really win or will it simply put more distance between us?

•Am I overreacting to the situation? Am I letting the rest of my day's circumstances affect the way I deal with this confrontation?

Remember, life is ten percent what happens to you and ninety percent how you react to it. A parent's response to defiance is important.

No matter what the age of the child, it is important for the parents to not match anger with anger. If your child is loud, consciously speak to her in a slightly quieter tone. This keeps the argument from escalating. Also speak a bit more slowly than you think is natural.

Use I-messages to communicate your position or feelings about the situation. Instead of saying, "You infuriate me when you disobey your curfew," try "I am infuriated when I see it's 11:30 p.m. and you are not home." Statements like this describe the problem without attacking the person.

Establish clear consequences in advance. Make them reasonable. And follow through with a tone of authority. At the first breaking, you may choose to remind the child of the rule. At the second or repeated breaking, act swiftly and effectively to enact an immediate consequence. The "Wait till your father gets home" tactic should not be used.

Be brief with your words. Don't talk in paragraphs. Simply say, "You did _____. You know the rule about _____. Because you broke the rule, you must _____." If a rule has been broken, don't allow the child to negotiate his/her way out of the consequence.

There is a time and a place for negotiating rules, but bargaining should not take place at the time when consequences are being enforced. It is especially important to involve teens in setting the rules and in the selection of the consequences. Some parent educators call this "contracting." You and your teen are agreeing to certain things and are setting up the "payment" for the contract. Be aware that excessive limits can lead to dependency, hostility, withdrawal, or rebellion. Cracking down, especially with a teen, is often not the most effective approach to take.

Do permit teens to express opinions and feelings. At another time (away from the infraction), you may choose to discuss and refine the existing rules and consequences. In fact, as children age, most rules should be modified based on the child's maturity and needs.

A few last reminders for the frustrated parent — In order to keep the situation from getting worse, don't bring up the past. Deal only with the present. And if you overreact in the heat of the moment, it's okay (even healthy) to say, "I was wrong." This will not undermine your authority.

Lamb School To Be Held Feb. 15

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — Pheona Powell, British shepherd, crafts person, and freelance storyteller, will be the featured speaker at the annual Lambing School sponsored by the Wyoming County Sheep and Wool Producers Association at the Pennsylvaia Department of Agriculture Building in Tunkhannock, on February 15. The PDA building is located on highway Route 92 South between Bartron John Deere and Campos trucking. The school will convene at 9:30 a.m. and conclude promptly at 12:00. There will be opportunity for informal discussion after formal adjournment.

Pheona Powell is a graduate of the Somerset College of Agriculture, Somerset, England where she majored in shepherding, crafts, and public speech. Upon graduating she did a ten-year stint as assistant shepherd on a farm with a 1,000 ewe Dorset flock. Following that position she became an independent contractor as a lambing time specialist in England until relocating to the United States where she had family ties. She has been similarly employed on sheep farms in Virginia and Pennsylvania. While residing in the Lancaster area, she was very active in the "Lancaster Sprinners and Weavers Guild" and served as its president for two years.

Subject matter for the 1997 Lambing School will focus on two areas: "Lamb and Ewe Care" and "Preparation for Lambing" and will be embellished with an entertaining storytime, "Lamb Tales." With her distinct British accent, inimitable wit, and James Herriot style, she is in demand as a story teller for many special events.

Although sponsored by the Wyoming County Association, anyone interested in sheep and lamb production is welcomed to attend. Additional information may be obtained by calling the association president, Victor W. Decker at (717) 833-2486.

Tasteful Ways To Express 'I Love You'

If you're looking for the ultimate expression of your love and devotion, treat your sweetheart to a delectable dessert.

Dense, rich and chewy, brownies are quite seductive whether they're based on chocolate, peanut butter, or spice-flavored dough. The perfect brownie is one with rich, full flavor enriched with butter and tender, moist, and slightly chewy crumb. The top should be thin and crisp and the flavor of the whole brownie so good that it is impossible to refuse a second one.

A bit more time consuming but perhaps a more emphatic way to express your devotion is to prepare a Chocolate Truffle Cake, Orange Kiss Me Cake, or a Caramel Pie.

Making one of these recipes is certain to spread "I Love You" sentiments to your favorite Valentine.

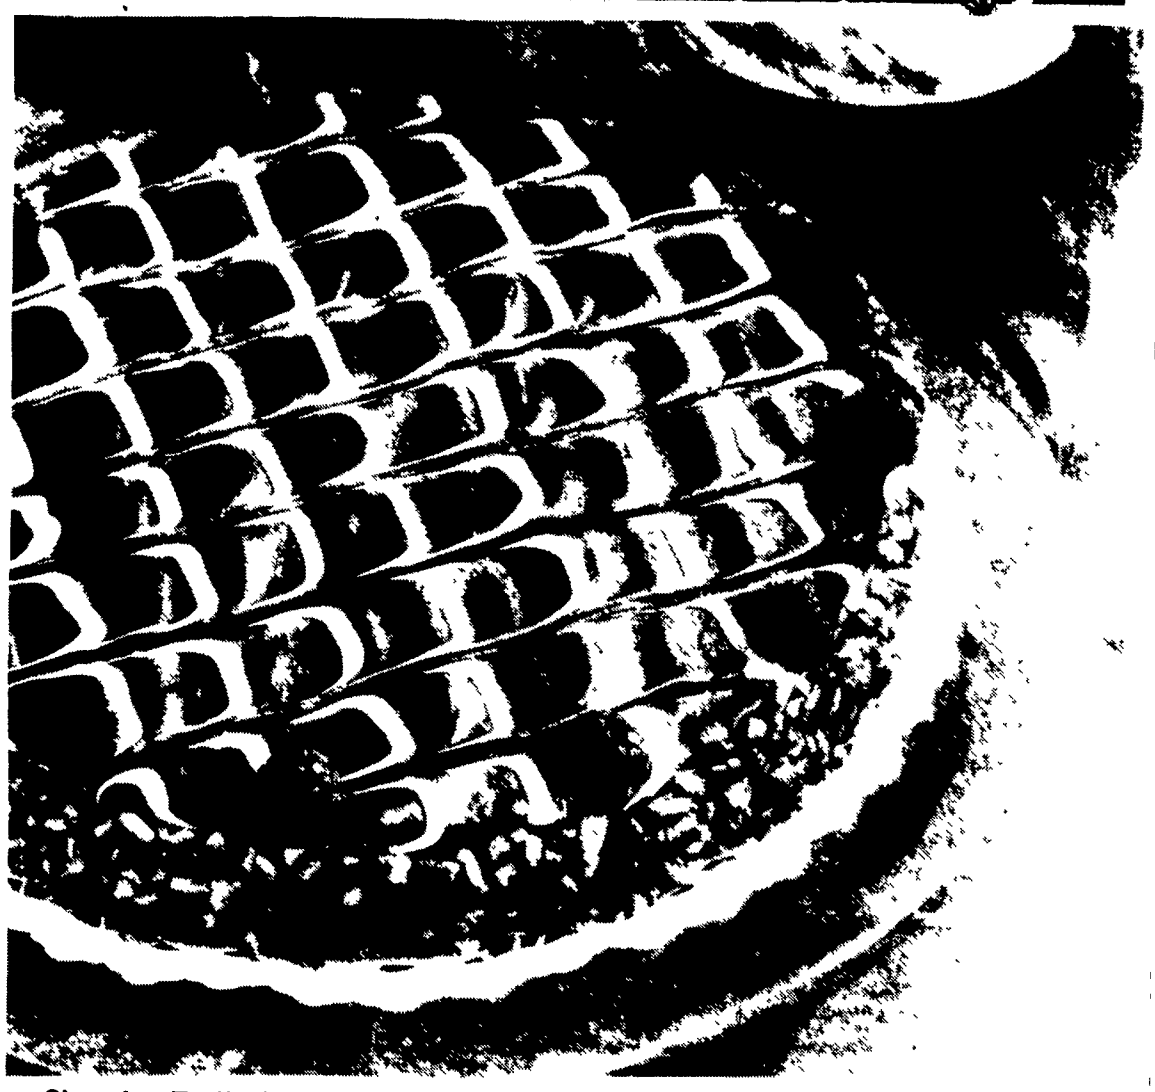
CHOCOLATE TRUFFLE CAKE

Cake:
¾ cup butter, cut in pieces
8 ounces semisweet chocolate, coarsely chopped
6 eggs
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup finely ground pecans or almonds
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Ganache:
½ cup whipping cream
4 ounces semisweet chocolate, chopped
2 tablespoons butter

Garnish:
2 ounces white chocolate, coarsely chopped
¾ cup finely chopped pecans or almonds
Fresh raspberries, if desired



Chocolate Truffle Cake garnished with white chocolate, pecans, and fresh raspberries is a tasty way to say "I love you."

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter and flour 9-inch diameter springform pan. Line bottom of pan with waxed paper, butter and flour paper. For cake, heat butter and chocolate in small saucepan over low heat until melted. Remove from heat; set aside. Beat eggs in large mixer bowl until frothy. Gradually add sugar; continue beating 4 to 5 minutes or until mixture has triped in volume. Gradually add chocolate mixture; mix well. Fold in ground pecans, flour, and vanilla. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake 35 to 40 minutes until cake springs back when lightly touched in center. Cool cake in pan on wire rack 15 minutes. Run knife around edge of pan to loosen cake. Remove side of pan; invert cake onto wire rack. Carefully remove pan bottom and waxed paper; cool completely.

For ganache, heat cream, chocolate and butter in medium saucepan over low heat, stirring until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Refrigerate until mixture is thick enough to spread yet is still pourable.

Place cake on wire rack over waxed paper lined baking sheet. Pour ganache over cake; smooth top and sides with spatula. Carefully transfer to serving plate. For garnish, place white chocolate in small heatproof bowl. Place bowl in small skillet with water. Heat over low heat until chocolate is melted. Place melted chocolate in pastry bag with plain round tip; pipe evenly spaced horizontal lines on cake. With a wooden pick or tip of a small knife, draw through white chocolate vertically across the lines to form design. Press chopped pecans onto side of cake. Arrange raspberries around outside edge of cake. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.

Featured Recipe

If you're looking for a dessert to woo and wow your Valentine, here is one from the American Dairy Association. After testing many ultra-brownie desserts, they came up with the classic and sophisticated flavor combination of chocolate and raspberries. To add another dimension of texture as well as flavor and undeniable style, this chocolate brownie is studded with bits of white chocolate, then doused with a warm and chocolately sour cream sauce spiked with raspberry schnapps.

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE BROWNIES WITH RASPBERRY CHOCOLATE SAUCE

Brownies:
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
½ cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled
2 ounces white chocolate, broken into small chunks

Rasperry Chocolate Sauce

6 ounces milk chocolate with raspberry liquid filling, broken in pieces
3 tablespoons whipping cream
2 tablespoons honey
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons raspberry schnapps
French vanilla ice cream
Whipped cream
Fresh raspberries
Fresh mint

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. For brownies, cream butter in large mixer bowl until fluffy. Beat in sugar and vanilla until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Mix in flour, cocoa, baking powder, and salt. Blend in melted chocolate. By hand, fold in white chocolate. Pour into well-buttered and floured 8-inch square baking pan. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool completely on wire rack.

Meanwhile, for sauce, combine chocolate, whipping cream, and honey in medium-sized heavy saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate is melted. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Gently fold in sour cream and raspberry schnapps. To serve, cut brownies into small squares. Top with French vanilla ice cream. Spoon on Raspberry Chocolate Sauce. Dollop with whipped cream and garnish with raspberries and mint.

Start Tuberous Begonias In Midwinter

Are you still overwintering begonias as a houseplant? Some begonias grown especially for their bloom (Tuberous begonias) differ from Rex begonias grown for their foliage. In February start planting the large bulb-like roots called tubers for outdoor growing this spring and summer.

Rex types grown as houseplants have large, hairy leaves with a variety of colored patterns. Their leaves have striking colors of silver, white, green, red and purple. Common begonia types that produce small reddish flowers include the common wax begonia, elephant's ear begonia and spotted angel-wing begonia.

For large flowers, tuberous begonias (Begonia tuberhybrida) are best. These are hybrids derived from crossing several South American species known for their sensational blooms. Tuberous begonias bloom from early summer till frost. The flower color include rich textured hues of pink, scarlet, orange, yellow, salmon and white.

Begin by choosing the large and firmest root tubers. The larger the tuber, the better. Larger tubers produce more blooms on a stockier plant.

These tubers are fleshy storage roots with an "eye" attached to the stem. Place them, round end down, in open trays of moist vermiculite, peat moss, or sphagnum peat. Space three to four inches apart, with the top of the tuber about half an inch below the surface. Water sparingly until they begin to grow. Tubers may rot with too much water. Set trays where they'll receive bright, indirect sunlight with temperatures of about 70 degrees F.

In about a month, each tuber should have enough leafy top growth to be transferred to a 4 to 6 inch pot. A good soil mix can be made from equal parts of vermiculite, peat, sand or well-rotted compost. Good drainage is essential. Set pots in an east window for plenty of light but little direct sunlight. The temperature should be about 65 degrees F and no lower than 60 degrees.

Transplant tuberous begonias into a well-drained shady spots after the last spring frost (May 10). Plant at the same depth as in the pots. Plants should be protected from afternoon sun. Too much shade will create tall and leggy pants. A windy area will necessitate staking. Water and fertilize begonias throughout the summer to avoid bud and flower drop. Use a liquid fertilizer every other week.

Low growing types of tuberous begonias make ideal summer borders by massing into groups of three or more plants. Other pendulous types look great in hanging baskets or window boxes.

Popular double-flowering types like non-stop begonais are my personal favorite. They have a flower three to five inches across. They are resistant to heat and summer drought but require only light shade. Some pastel colors are included as non-stops. Camellia-flowered begonias, picotee and carnation types also produce double flowers. All are free-flowering with a compact habit.

Over and underwatering tuberous begonias will cause some bud drop. Plants with wet feet are prone to stem rots, powdery mildew and bud drop. Mealy bugs, aphids, white flies and slugs enjoy a waterlogged plant.

SINFUL OUTRAGEOUS BROWNIES

5 cups chocolate chips, divided
6-ounces unsweetened baking chocolate
6 large eggs
2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon powdered Espresso
2 tablespoons vanilla extract
2¼ cups granulated sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour

Roll in flour, then in an egg wash (a couple of whole eggs, beaten with a couple of tablespoons of cold water, then in dry seasoned bread Italina-flavored bread crumbs. For a really crisp crust, repeat the egg wash, bread crumb dip a second time. Place on waxed paper and freeze for a few hours (this will keep the cheese from melting when fried). Before serving, heat oil to 375-400, then drop the frozen sticks in, and fry until just browned (do not cook too long, or the cheese will melt out and make a mess of your fryer and appetizer.

ANSWER — Sylvia Rebert, Wellsville, wanted an old-time recipe for fruitcake in which the cake is stored for a few weeks (wrapped in a tin) with either rum, brandy or whiskey poured over it occasionally. Thanks to Gloria Sweigart, Manheim, for sending a recipe.

Dark Fruit Cake

Preheat oven to 275 degrees, bake one hour. Turn to 300 degrees, bake one hour more or until cake tests done.

First: 2 cups raisins

Chop:

2 cups dates
1 cup figs
2 cups walnuts
1 cup candied cherries
2 tablespoons candied orange peel
2 tablespoons candied lemon peel
½ cup candied pineapple
¼ cup candied citron

Reserve some half piece of walnuts and cherries to place on top of cake before baking. (Note: she cuts back on raisins, dates, figs, and uses more pineapple, cherries, and citron). Set aside:

Second:

3 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon mace

Take about ½ cup and put over fruit mixture, toss to coat. Set aside.

Third: Cream together:

1 cup shortening
1½ cups light brown sugar
3 eggs, one at a time

Mix cream mixture alternately with dry mixture and ½ cup apple or grape juice and 1 cup apple or grape jam. Add the fruits and stir well.

Pour into a large tube pan lined with waxed paper, greased and floured. Place walnut halves and cherries overtop.

If cake browns too fast, lay a piece of brown paper (cut from grocery bag over top. Remove and cool in pan for 30 minutes. Remove from pan and cool. Soak a heavy clean cloth in grape wine (almost dripping wet) wrap cake in cloth and store in tight container, check in 2 weeks; add more wine if necessary. Bake at least four weeks before using.

Also, Betty Light, Lebanon, sent in this recipe.

Light Fruitcake

1½ cups butter, softened
1½ cups sugar
1 tablespoons vanilla extract
1 tablespoon lemon extract
7 eggs, separated
3 cups all-purpose flour, sifted
1½ pounds yellow, green, and red candied pineapple, cubed
1 pound red and green candied cherries
¼ pound candied citron
½ pound golden raisins
3 cups pecan halves
1 cup black walnuts, coarsely chopped
½ cup all-purpose flour
Additional candied fruits and nuts
¼ cup brandy
Additional brandy
Preheat oven to 250 degrees.

Prepare tube pan with brown paper (do not use recycled paper). Cut circle for the bottom, piece for around the tube, and a piece to line the outside of the pan. Butter the brown paper and set aside. Cut another circle for top.

Cream together; in a large bowl, the butter and sugar until light and fluffy, add flavorings and egg yolks, beat until well blended. Stir in 3 cups flour.

Combine fruits, nuts, and dredge with ½ cup flour. Stir into batter. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into the cake batter.

Spoon mixture into prepared pan. Arrange additional fruits and nuts on top.

Grease the last brown circle and place on top, greased side down.

Bake for 4 hours or until cake tests done. Remove from oven. Take off paper cover, slowly pour ¼ cup brandy evenly over cake. Let cool completely on wire rack.

Remove from pan, peel paper liner from cake. Wrap cake in brandy soaked cheesecloth. Store in an airtight container in a cool place 3 weeks. Pour a small amount of brandy over cake each week. Yields one 10-inch cake.

Refrigerate light fruitcake for longer storage. Refrigeration also makes the cake slice neater and easier.

Think about it. Every time you get to the end of the row, you say to yourself, "If my tractor had a better turning radius, then I'd spend less time turning around. And more time turning a profit."

Spend More Time Turning A Profit And Less Time Turning Your Tractor.

Don't dream anymore. Because the new turning radius on the 9635 AGCO® Allis tractor has arrived. How did we do it? For starters, the frame has been contoured inward four inches on each side of the engine. And we've recessed the space between the grille and radiator, giving you even more clearance between the front tires and frame. We've also sculpted and sized the side quarter panels without disturbing the tractor's overall appearance.

- The 9635 has 135 PTO hp and an 18-speed powershift transmission with 18 forward and 9 reverse speeds, giving you even more working options.
- The Series 40 liquid-cooled engine has a combustion chamber design which provides excellent fuel economy while reducing exhaust emissions.
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance.
- As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor, there's a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty backing it.

To see the new turning radius on the 9635, stop by and see us. We'll be glad to show you how much time and money you can save.

Only 28 Days But February Is A Special Month

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

February is the shortest of the 12 months in the year. Usually, it has 28 days. Every fourth year there are 29 days in February. The next time that February will have 29 days will be in the year 2000.

February is filled with important days — Groundhog Day, President Abraham Lincoln's birthday, Valentine's Day, and President George Washington's birthday.

There is also Ash Wednesday. Ash Wednesday is the seventh Wednesday before Easter. It starts the season of Lent.

During Lent, many Christians give up something they usually do or eat at most other times. This is "fasting."

They fast during Lent because they are remembering that Jesus fasted 40 days in the wilderness.

Groundhog Day is on February 2. Some people think that the groundhog can predict how many weeks are left in winter.

If his head pops out of his underground burrow and the sun is up, Mr. Groundhog will probably see his shadow.

Then somebody will announce that winter will last for six more weeks. Most people know it's just for fun.

President Lincoln's birthday is February 12. Ash Wednesday, in 1997, is on the same day.

Two days later, Valentine's Day is on February 14. It's a day to celebrate love. Millions of valentines will be exchanged between classmates, friends, and sweethearts.

Candy, chocolates or flowers make dandy Valentine surprises.

They say that mailmen and postmen deliver almost as many cards on Valentine's Day as they do at Christmas.

We are proud to remember our first president, George Washington whose birthday is on February 22.

The nation will celebrate the birthdays of Mr. Washington and Mr. Lincoln this year, on February 17.

Let's all have fun in February.

Can an apple a day keep cancer away?
Even if you eat an apple a day you will probably still have to visit your doctor occasionally But eating the right amount of fruits and vegetables does make your body strong and healthy, and they can help prevent diseases like cancer, too
According to our doctor friends at Ohio State, about half of the people who eat four to five servings of fruits and vegetables a day are less likely to get cancer And that's really important, because cancer is the No 2 cause of death in grown ups
First, some background Cancer is caused by carcinogens (Say car-SIN-oh-gins) Carcinogens can come from a lot of different things, including tobacco, some foods or too many bad sunburns Even some bacteria in your body make carcinogens
The fiber in fruits and veggies — that's the stuff that makes you chew more — helps clean out the path food travels inside your body and pushes the carcinogens out The fiber also soaks up the carcinogens And, some of the nutrients can stop carcinogens from doing more damage
Doctors think the good stuff in fruits and vegetables is so important that they are doing all sorts of research on it The area's called nutraceuticals — nutra for nutrition, and ceuticals for pharmaceuticals, or drugs that make you better
So help your body out — eat your fruits and veggies!

More Than 300 Attend Crop Field Day At Long Acres

Soil Penetration, Loosening Help Improve Corn Standability

Conservation is evident on the Long Acres Potato Farm, Tionesta. A field day at the farm showed visitors the importance of tillage and how to eliminate compaction.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

TIONESTA (Clarion Co.)— Despite rainy conditions, methods to improve water absorption and effective use of starter fertilizer allowed a corn producer here to garner 145 bushels/acre of shelled corn this season

The partners that comprise Long Acres Potato Farm know what the challenges of the past growing season brought: a cool, wet spring followed by a wet summer followed by well, despite all that, the corn went in on time and did well.

About 350 corn growers and agri-industry representatives, including a large continent of Penn State extension staff, were on hand to show the results of Bt corn, corn variety trials, and use of starter and sidedress fertilizers at the Crop Field Day held at Long Acres in September last year.

According to one of the partners, Clarence Beck, who helped stage the field day, the number one mea-

Beck said that the partnership uses a four-year rotation corn, followed by soybeans or oats, followed by potatoes or wheat, then back to corn The important thing to remember, noted Beck, is that the farm doesn't follow corn with corn

"We also have learned to subsoil the ground to 18 inches deep and keep the soil real loose to benefit the root system," said Beck Even in a dry year, he said, subsoiling is "very beneficial" for a healthier, more productive crop

The wet weather this year was a real challenge It "held us back in terms of subsoiling and tillage," Beck said

What farmers are discovering, he indicated, was that the use of a starter fertilizer in the row with a lot of urea can have detrimental effects on a crop The fertilizer can burn the root system.

What Long Acres has done is make use of a monoammoniated phosphorous (MAP) and sulphur-magnesium

Burcucumber Busts Out In Pa. Corn Fields

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Burcucumber — also known as "wild pickle" — has been "exploding" in many Pennsylvania corn fields, said a Penn State weed specialist

According to Dr Bill Curran, Penn State associate professor of weed science, the cumbersome weed can cause heavy damage in corn and soybean fields with potential significant loss of yields

To make matters worse, the weed is extremely difficult and can be expensive to control However, the alternatives of using no control or not changing control strategies could prove catastrophic for corn growers

Curran said the vine-type weed, which looks just like a cucumber plant with broad, five-sided leaves, can branch out through fields of corn and soybeans for great distances The plants can choke off corn stalks and envelope soybean stands quickly if left untreated.

Worse, the plant produces clusters of seed with 16-20 seeds per cluster "There overwinter In addition, the clusters can attach themselves readily to clothing or fur cover and can be spread easily by rodents or man

"This is a bottom-ground, wet and heavy soil type of vine weed," said Curran But in a growing season that was as continuously wet as this past one, any type of field could fall victim Growers realized, according to the weed specialist, that "no herbicides provided residual control good enough to control the weed all season long."

The problem is made worse by the fact that the vines and seeds pose real hazards at harvest

"Burcucumber clogs up combines, wraps up in the reels, and clogs up silage choppers," said Curran

The seed, when it germinates, is very competitive, can reduce yield on crops significantly, and spreads quickly

Some fields can get so infested with the weed that they simply cannot be chopped for silage or combined

For corn fields that are past treatment and to be used for silage, there is hope: a [illegible] by Curran shows

Meet Lancaster's New Extension Home Economist

Nancy Wiker is the newly-appointed home economist for Lancaster County's Penn State Cooperative Extension. After teaching home economic-related courses for 24 years at Pequea Valley High School, Wiker has achieved her long-standing goal to become associated with extension services.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "How do I remove coffee stains from a tablecloth?"

"How do I get the most efficient use from my freezer?"

These were questions callers posed to Nancy Wiker during her first day on the job as the newly-appointed home economist for Penn State Cooperative Extension at the Lancaster County office.

"I'm really excited about this job. It's been my long-term goal for years and this is just the right timing for me," Wiker said.

She left behind her 24-year tenure as a teacher of home-economic related courses at the county's Pequea Valley High School to assume her new position.

The hours of a teaching job seemed more conducive to raising a family, but now that she and her husband Bob's children, Dana, 7; Justin, 12; and Ross, 19, are older, Wiker considers the job opening as the right timing for her.

Wiker grew up in Susquehanna County. "My parents and grandparents were very family oriented and served as healthy role models to me," Wiker said of the cooking and sewing skills she acquired during her growing up years.

Their influence caused her to study individual and family studies at Penn State and attain a teaching certificate and later a master's of education degree.

Over the years, Wiker has participated in the change of focus in home economic courses mandated for high school students.

"I've taught it all," Wiker said of the food, clothing, and textile emphasis that has now switched to home management, housing, consumerism, and child development courses.

Wiker believes her background has provided her with a multi-faceted background for the many responsibilities she faces in her job as the county home economist.

"Having lived in the county for 25 years, I already have many established contacts through my work with school field trips and guest speakers," she said.

As a former summer assistant in the Susquehanna County Extension office, Wiker had a good grasp on the many services that the extension provides, but even she is surprised by the scope of its services now that she is actually in a full-time position with the extension.

"The extension is one of the best kept secrets," she said of the public's unfamiliarity with all the services offered.

She is in the process of determining how to best make the extension's resources known to the community and serve its needs.

While her exact program is not in place at this time, Wiker forsees a food and nutrition focus. She said, "I plan to help people see how to fit healthy eating into everyday lifestyles."

This will include offering workshops to all economical levels.

Wiker is not alone in determining the services that should be offered to the community. In addition to her mentor, Lettie Schadler, extension director for Lebanon County, Wiker will be guided by an advisory council made up of about 20 persons, most who hold office on other community service boards.

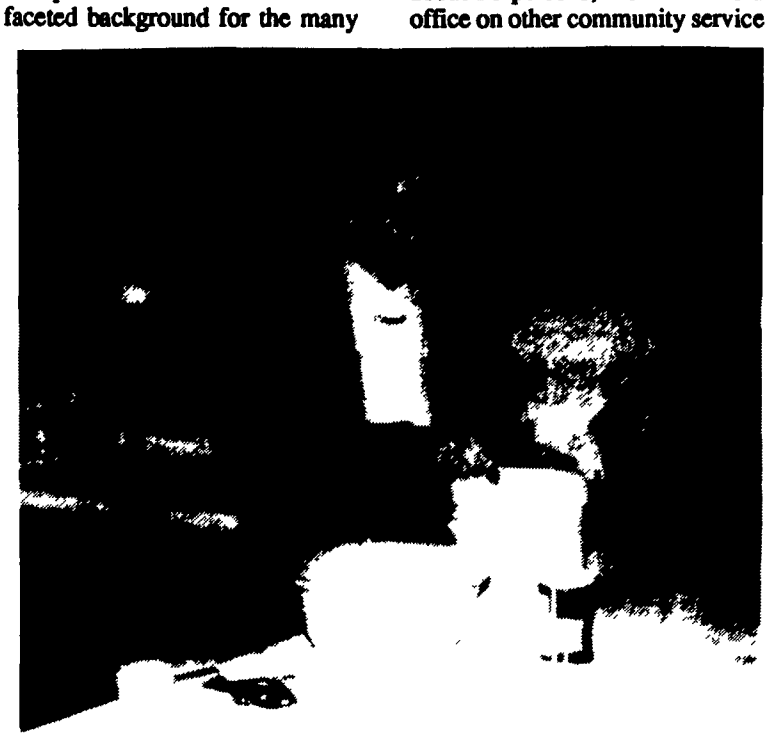
Wiker will be participating in writing the column "Family Living Focus," which appears in this paper, and in local radio programing related to consumerism.

Regarding all those questions that callers pose, Wiker said that if she doesn't know the answers, she has plenty of resources. In addition to reference books and electronic sources, Wiker has direct access to Penn State personnel.

"If I don't know the answer immediately, I promise to find out and call back," Wiker said.

Unlike her job as a schoolteacher, Wiker said it will be more difficult to determine how clients use the information the extension offers. She won't see many of the people helped through extension services on a regular basis. But, she knows that the people she teaches will attend workshops and ask for help because they want it rather than being required to participate.

"The change in career is exciting to me. I had used extension resources before and now to become part of serving the community is a wonderful opportunity," she said.



Wiker plans to help people see how to fit healthy eating into everyday lifestyles by offering food and nutrition programs at the Farm and Home Center.

Vegetable Conference Offers Marketing Ideas

Produce Auctions Satisfy Buyers And Sellers

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — With new produce auctions popping up across the state, who is benefitting from the surge?

To answer that question, a panel composed of two buyers, a grower, and a customer offered their perspectives at the Vegetable Conference held this week at the Hershey Lodge & Convention Center.

The four panel participants shared what they consider personal benefits and pitfalls of produce markets.

Wilmer Hoover, grower from Elizabethtown, told how he has farmed produce on his 50-acre farm since 1984. According to him, produce auctions are successful when growers bring produce in every day and not just when prices are high.

To provide a consistent market for corn, Hoover said that on his acreage, he plants about two acres of corn every week for 10 to 12 weeks. He does similar plantings for cantaloupe.

Although growers prefer to sell when the price is at the peak, Hoover said that is not realistic.

"If you provide a steady flow of one crop you end up with a better average price. It's better for the buyer, better for the grower," he said.

Growers are expected to grade and neatly package produce.

"A top quality price is given if produce is graded properly and picked the day of the auction," Hoover said.

Romaine Erb, who with her husband operates Brook Lawn Farm in Lancaster, explained that she and her husband can't grow a sufficient supply of fresh produce for their customers. They supplement their own homegrown produce by frequenting a local produce auction.

"The big advantage is that the auction is open six days a week during the peak season. I can count on fresh product and an adequate selection," Erb said.

The produce auction offers buyers the opportunity to inspect lots and even taste for flavor before going over the auction block, Erb said. She has discovered that generally if she needs an item, others do also, and the prices are high.

"But it averages out in the long run if I buy regularly," Erb said. "There are no guarantees that you'll get the price and amount but it's exciting. The advantages of auctions far outweigh an inconveniences."

The disadvantageous are minimal and can easily be worked through, Erb believes. For example, occasionally the top layer may look like top grade, but the bottom layer may not be full or is poor quality. These concerns should be taken to the auction manager who can rectify the problem. Also, buyers learn what growers can be trusted and become loyal to them.

During the busy season, it is necessary to make sure purchases are not stolen before loading, although that is rare. Also, when the auction is crowded, it is difficult to see lots, and long lines may become frustrating while waiting for the needed items to be brought before the auction block.

Erb also sees the produce auction as a means of staying up to date on information with growers and buyers.

Glen Gross operates Ashcombe Farms in Mechanicsburg. He attends three different auctions on a weekly basis throughout the growing season to supplement the produce he grows for his roadside market. Each auction operates differently, he said. The Leola auction allows only homegrown produce but the two Cumberland auctions, have produce shipped in from the South.

"The quality of produce auctions far surpass wholesale markets," Gross said. As a buyer, he insists on full boxes and evenly graded produce.

Herb Gebley manages Kutztown Produce Auction and formerly operated produce auctions in other states. Although Gebley was representing the customer on the panel, the audience asked questions pertaining to his role as auction manager.

"The auction manager is in the middle between the buyer and grower and sometimes we are their best friend and other times their worst enemy," Gebly said of the need to respond to both buyer and grower.

Gebley stressed the importance of maintaining communication with the auction's owner to work out problems for both growers and buyers. The auction manager should trace back lots of questionable quality when a buyer is unhappy. Sometimes boxes that started out full end up half full because some auction goers steal and eat from boxes. Likewise a grower's complaint about requirements for selling through the auction should be voiced. Suggestions and comments should be written with a phone number attached so problems can be resolved.

"Take advantage of meetings held in the winter to address problems that you think should be addressed," Gebley said.

The audience asked what item of produce is most in demand. Gebley said there is often a need for specialty items or for smaller packages of produce.

Gebley encouraged users of produce auctions to be acquainted with trends. "Certain days, certain items sell better."

Weather also plays a large part in auction prices. Tomatoes tend to bring lower prices through long dry stretches, but higher prices after a rain. If you have tomatoes or peaches that can be held several days for a more favorable market, Gebley encouraged it as long as quality was maintained.

Most buyers want peaches and tomatoes firm, not ready-to-eat.

Buyers include homeowners, people who sell produce, restaurants, food banks, groups of families, farm markets, wholesalers, and chain food markets.

Growers in the audience voiced several complaints about the auctions requiring them to pay for bulk containers and bins. Gebley recognizes their frustration and said that many auctions offer coupons for returned bins and containers.

Someone from the audience said, "I get the impression that produce auctions are better for the buyer than the seller."

But Hoover, who is a grower, maintained that the benefits work both ways.

"Every one needs to make money to survive," Gebley said. "Cooperation and communication will help us all to survive."

Creative Marketing For Success

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — As a third generation farmer, Robert Matarazzo is always looking for new ways to market not only his produce but those of other farmers.

In addition to farming 100 acres in New Jersey, Matarazzo operates a marketing and consulting firm, RJM Marketing, to aid other farmers in promoting their products.

Matarazzo taught two sessions at the Vegetable Conference held this week at the annual meeting of the State Horticultural Association in Hershey. One session dealt with developing new wholesale markets and the other with new retail markets.

To develop new markets, Matarazzo suggested growers take a look at the following sources: restaurants, specialty stores, chain stores, phamaceutical companies, food service, caterers, processors, roadside markets, brokers, auction blocks, terminal markets, hotels, amusement parks, groceries, and deli's.

Draft a letter to send to all potential buyers. Explain about your farm and why they should consider you. Promote your quality and service. Define your commitment. Provide a separate page for your product list. Close with a thank you and a plan to follow up.

Other possibilities include visiting buyers, providing promotional material even if it is just a list of products and availability dates, offering samples when product is available, and inviting the buyer to your farm for a tour.

Robert Matarazzo taught sessions on marketing by retailing and wholesaling. Here Matarazzo shows the book he wrote called "Marketing for Success, Creative Marketing Tools for the Agricultural Industry."

As a grower, Matarazzo thinks it is important to differential your produce from other growers so that people look and ask for your produce.

"Stickers are the wave of the future," Matarazzo said of the little stickers attached to individual tomatoes and produce. He suggests printing a logo with your farm name to be attached to produce.

In addition, he encourages providing educational information to give to produce managers, who often are not up-to-date on the health benefits of items. Tips on care, preparation, and recipes also encourage sales.

Fax machines are great tools for growers according to Matarazzo. He suggests faxing out a list of the produce available every morning to save phone calls. If necessary, phone calls can be used to follow up.

Creativity in developing new markets encourages new sales. Prepare a dish using the produce or suggest recipes to restaurant owners. Offer to promote the product in the store.

Most Effective Ways To Be Successful In Farming Business

The most effective ways to be successful in the farming business is to focus on developing retail markets, according to Matarazzo.

"Quality products are by far the most effective tool that we have," Matarazzo told conference goers.

He also stresses the need for to educate a knowledgeble, friendly, and enthusiastic staff to be honest but not to divulge detrimental information such as the hail has ruined all the peaches.

The Matarazzos host 14 festival events annually on their New Jersey Farm. Because they do not live along a main road, they need to find a way to entice customers from 40 miles away. Some successful events are Family Harvest, Pow Wow, and Peach and Bluegrass Festival.

Not only does this attract new customers but newspapers often do write ups about the events, which

Birth Center To Hold Quilting Bee

LOU ANN GOOD

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — What does an old-fashioned quilting bee have to do with a birthing center?

A lot if it's the Birth Care & Family Health Services located at 1180 Dry Wells Rd., Quarryville.

"It's a way to raise funds to subsidize services to families with no insurance and little income," said Maren Ketcham, administrator for the Center.

Experienced needlewomen and novices will stitch several donated tops on Thursday, Feb. 13, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Hoffman Building in Quarryville. The annual quilting bee is an open invitation to all who like to quilt and want to help those in need.

The Center was begun in by Rita Rhoads, who grew up on the farm across the road from the center. Rita's conservative Mennonite family was cautious about "higher education" but allowed her to pursue nursing. While studying for a nursing degree, Rita became interested in midwifery and sought training at the Frontier School of Nursing in Tenn. After receiving her certification for family nurse practitioner and midwifery in 1978, Rita returned to the area and set up practice at the present location. Her's was the first state licensed birthing center in Pennsylvania and one of the first 10 established in the U.S.

The Birth Center is not owned and operated by a hospital but it maintains close ties with the hospital as a backup for complicated pregnancies and deliveries. In addition, physicians spend one day weekly at the office to see all patients at least once during prenatal care and to perform circumcisions on newborn boys.

Ketcham said that about 20 percent of the patients opt for home deliveries, 10 percent for hospital deliveries, and the remainder are born at the center that is equipped with two birthing rooms.

At first, her patients were mainly Amish women who preferred not to be hospitalized for childbirth. In addition to Amish, the clientel now includes many women who want more personalized care with lower technological intervention.

Many come because they are impressed by the postpartum care given, which includes checkups at one day, three days, one week, three weeks, and six weeks.

More than 1,200 babies have been delivered at the Center. Two certified nurse midwives and four nurses staff the Center. Within the last year, the Center saw a need to provide for community women in need of medical assistance.

Certified Nurse Midwife Rita Rhoads, left, and Tracy Mauger, RN, hold up one of the quilts made during the Birth Care's annual quilting bee. The quilts are sold at the Birth's Center's annual auction to raise funds for crisis pregnancies and families without insurance and little income.

"Proceeds from fund raising projects help to support the Center's ministry to crisis pregnancies," Ketcham said.

The finished quilts will be auctioned at the Birth Center's Fifth annual Benefit Auction to be held Sat. June 7.

During the Quilting Bee, a homemade lunch will be served at noon. Participants are asked to bring a special dessert or finger food to share. Local businesses have donated door prizes to be awarded throughout the day.

Children are welcome and child care help is available. If you have them, bring your own thimble and scissors.

For more information about the Quilting Bee, call the Birth Center at (717) 786-4010.

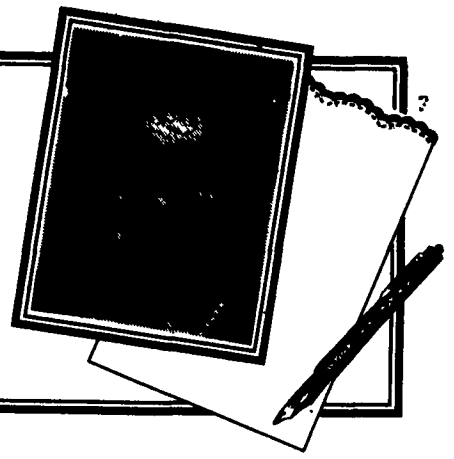
Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



Many of our friends and relatives eat at restaurants quite often. We sit at our kitchen table day after day. However, the other week we had a wedding anniversary and so we did eat lunch away from home. My usual order is seafood as at home we have beef, pork or chicken. We also attended a banquet in Lancaster the same week. What a treat to have someone wait on me for a change.

Sometimes in the fall, I've put cherry tomato plants in pots in the house. But, even though they bloomed, they did not bear. So, this year I didn't bother with them. However, some seeds came up in the flower pots and I remembered what a reader of Lancaster Farming told me years ago. He said, "You must brush the blossoms with a bunny tail." I did that and now I'm waiting for the green tomatoes to ripen.

The tree trimmers for the electric power company have visited our farm recently and trimmed many trees as the 19 summer cottages along the Conestoga River all have electricity and they are built in the woods. Even some of our big walnut and cherry trees have fallen to their chain saws. Because it takes so long for a tree to grow, I hate to see them destroyed.

Years ago I was provoked at my father as he cut down a big row of trees. You see these trees had bittersweet vines growing on them. In the fall he sold bunches of bittersweet on the Northern Market in Lancaster. That is, he did, if people didn't come and steal all of them. One day he decided that he had had enough trouble and he destroyed everything. If he could not have the berries, then no one else would either.

We had a very large sweetgum tree in the middle of a field and when we started to farm here, my husband decided that it spoiled too many crops and so he cut it down. A big oak was a landmark on my parents farm but now it too has gone the way of old trees. Even a large black cherry tree that my sister climbed was rotted away. Nothing lasts forever.

Commemorate Food Affordability

CAMP HILL (Dauphin Co.) — Food in American is affordable. In fact, between Jan. 1 and Feb. 10, Americans will likely have earned enough income to pay for their entire 1997 food supply, according to the State Women's Committee of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB). The PFB State Women's Committee has designated Feb. 10 as Farm Bureau's inaugural Food Check-Out Day.

According to the latest statistics from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service, American families and individuals spend, on average, 11 percent of their disposable personal income for food. That means Pennsylvania households will have earned enough disposable income — that portion of income available for spending or saving — to pay for their annual food supply in just 41 days.

"The early occurrence of this date is noteworthy," said Jenny Teeter of Milan, who chairs the committee, "It speaks well of our nation's increasing standard of living, which would certainly be reduced without the affordable, domestic food supply produced by America's farmers and ranchers."

By comparison, Tax Freedom Day, the day the average American had earned enough money to pay federal, state and local taxes, was May 7 last year, according to the Tax Foundation.

"I find it amazing that people can pay for their yearly food supply nearly three months earlier than it would take them to pay their tax burden," Teeter said.

"Those of us involved in agriculture are proud to help make America's food supply abundant, safe, varied and affordable. Rather than being an economic burden, shopping for food is seen as being enjoyable. That's the way it should be."

Mrs. Teeter said she hopes Americans will come to understand that affordable food is "a product of our successful food production and distribution system." Food is not so affordable in some other countries. In comparison to 11 percent of disposable income in the U.S., food costs require 15 percent of personal spending in France, nearly 20 percent in Japan, 30 percent in Mexico and over 50 percent in India.

"This day should hold meaning for most Americans," she said. "As food producers we are concerned that some Americans cannot afford to buy the food they need, but we are proud of the part we have played in making our food supply more affordable for all."

The percent of disposable personal income spent for food in the U.S. has been steadily declining over the last 25 years. In 1970, Food Check-Out Day would have been 10 days later — February 20. Food is more affordable today due to a widening gap between growth in per capita incomes and the amount of money spent for food, according to USDA.

This overall decrease is made more notable by the fact that trends indicate Americans are buying more expensive convenience food items for preparation at home, as well as more food away from home. Since 1970, money spent for food away from home has increased from $26.4 billion to $228.4 billion.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a voluntary, statewide farm organization which represents 26,625 farm and rural families. It is affiliated with the 4.7-million member American Farm Bureau Federation.

Creative Ideas

is a source of free advertising.

Writing press releases is a cost effective tool that repeatedly produces excellent consumer response. Newspaper editors are open to ideas on covering farm operations. Whatever newspapers write about your operation is free advertising.

Matarazzo also maintains a mailing list that he uses for mailing newsletters of upcoming events and produce availability.

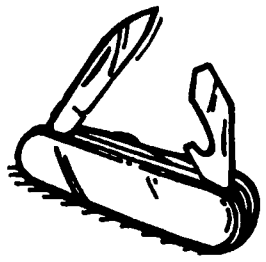
Diversity attracts customers. A bakery, cider mill, gift packages, filling mail orders, and pick-your-own operations are some ideas.

"Look for unique items not seen in chain stores," he said. One of his specialties is mini bread loaves stuffed with herbs in the center.

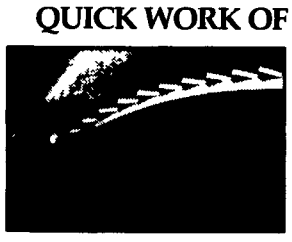
Some audience participants said that they are not allowed to serve food because of Dept. of Health regulations. Another participant countered that State Act 166 allows leniency under the right to farm act. Write to your state department to find out what your rights are. Township laws cannot override state rights.

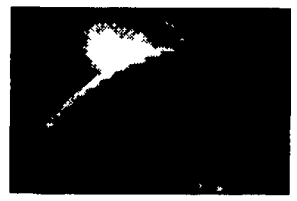
While following all Matrazzo's ideas might seem overwhelming to farmers, taking a few suggestions offers a beginning. Matarazzo wrote a book, "Marketing for Success, Creative Marketing Tools for the Agricultural Industry." By using his book, marketing strategies can be adapted. For a copy of his book, send $16.95 plus $3 for shipping and handling to RJM Marketing, 10 Doe Hollow Lane, Belvidere, NJ 07823. For credit card orders, phone (908) 475-4460.

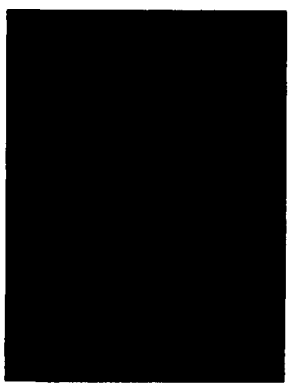
A Knife Cuts Twine...
An Oswalt® Hay Saw Cuts Hay!



(NEW HAY SAW PROCESSOR MAKES QUICK WORK OF LONG STEMMED HAY)







Some mixer companies will tell you they have "knives" installed on the augers of their mixers that will cut through long stemmed hay. But that's like comparing a pocket knife to a chain saw. Oswalt's newest feed mixer cuts through long stemmed hay, turning it into a blended, uniform and highly digestible ration . . and it does it in record time!

Hay Saw sections are installed in a continuous ribbon on the leading edge flighting of the bottom augers As hay is pulled into the lower augers, an even sawing action cuts effortlessly through the long stemmed hay And because it saws as the auger turns, it actually processes hay with a lot less torque, saving time and fuel

The new SURGE® One Touch™ makes stanchion milking as easy as this. A lightweight, gun-grip design integrates the milk line and pulsation connections into one simple process. Yet it's built incredibly tough to handle the real world demands of the dairy barn.

Most importantly, One Touch brings high-tech automation to stanchion operators with two optional management modules.

The TIMEKEEPER™ II module signals you when the cow finishes milking and displays how long she took to milk...promoting fast, consistent milking that leads to better udder health.

The Milk Yield Module measures individual cow production and milking time, allowing instant analysis of each cow's performance.

By putting today's production information at your fingertips, the SURGE One Touch lets you capture your cow's performance in the palm of your hand.

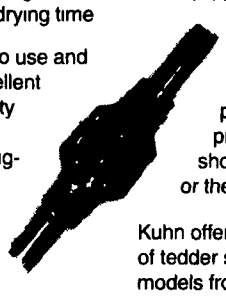
Wet weather is less of a threat to your valuable hay crop with Kuhn's Gyrotedder. Its gentle fluffing action speeds up hay's natural drying time.

The Gyrotedder is easy to use and gentle on your crop. Excellent ground following for quality tedding, even on difficult terrain due to the land-hugging, articulating chassis and adjustable wheels. Wheel height adjusts without the use of tools, instantly adapting rotor angle to crop density.

And for the ultimate in reliability and ease-of-use, several folding models are equipped with Kuhn's exclusive Digidrive® multiple finger coupling.



This maintenance-free, positive-drive system prevents machine damage, should the PTO be engaged or the rotors raised accidentally.

If a metal chimney is used, you can buy a top that turns with the wind so that the opening is always opposite the prevailing wind.

If the chimney is old either install a damper or smoke shelf or put a top on the chimney with the pipe coming out of the center with a swiveling top. Samuel writes that he will gladly explain further if you write to him at Box 55, RR7., Muncy, PA 17756.

Farm Bureau Foundation To Fund New Projects

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The American Farm Bureau Foundation for Agriculture will help finance five new agricultural research and education projects totalling $234,152 during its 1997-1998 funding cycle.

Projects will deal with evaluating agricultural market advisory services, assessing and managing agricultural watersheds, expanding Ag in the Classroom access, developing new technology for weed control, and improving nitrogen management in crop production.

Researchers at the University of Illinois and Ohio State will conduct a two-year evaluation of market advisory services for agricultural commodities. The study will compile data on, as well as analyze and investigate, the economic value of recommendations by market advisory services.

Study results will be published on a continuous basis. A home page on the World Wide Web will include a directory of services studies, results of the evaluation, weekly updates, and an ask-the-expert section.

At Grand Valley State University, Mich., researchers will develop an environmental index to help assess and manage agricultural watersheds. The one-year-study's objective is to provide information on agricultural watershed management for farmers and the public.

Through the watershed study, individual farmers will be able to learn about the quality of stream as it passes thorugh their farm. Specific evaluations at individual points along the stream will help provide a score for the entire watershed.

The American Farm Bureau Foundation for Agriculture was established in 1967 to initiate and finance vital agricultural research and education projects that were not receiving public funding. Two-thirds of the foundation's support comes from individual contributions.

General contributions can be made to the American Farm Bureau Foundation for Agriculture, 225 Touhy Ave., Park Ridge, IL 60068.

Keystone Pork Expo

The 19th annual Keystone Pork Expo will be held Feb. 12 at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center at the Lebanon County Fairgrounds on Cornwall and Rocherty Roads. This year's meeting will feature a trade show with 43 exhibits and educational seminars for producers.

The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, host of the Keystone Pork Expo, has invited Dr. Ralph Vinson, Swine Veterinarian from Oneida, Ill. to address "PRRS and Other Herd Health Pitfalls." His presentation will examine the current status of Porcine Reproductive and Respiratory Syndrome (PRRS), a health concern for many Pennsylvania swine producers. Vinson will also comment on various other herd health issues.

Lou Moore, Penn State professor of agricultural economics and a favorite speaker over the years at the Pork Expo, will be on hand to deliver his hog market outlook. Completing the morning seminars will be a presentation on "Why Our Industry Needs PQA" by Judy McDonnell, director of pork quality assurance marketing with the National Pork Producers Council in Des Moines, Iowa.

Additional activities at the Expo include a Legislative Activity Fund Silent Auction to support the Pennsylvania Swine Industry and for youth, a Junior Public Speaking Contest and Keystone Pork Bowl Competition.

Pennsylvania Pork Producers who are certified or recertified at Level III of the Pork Quality Assurance Program are reminded to bring their billfold PQA card to the Expo for a door price at the PQA booth.

Doors to the show open at 8 a.m. and registration is free.

Stretching Your Hay Supply

Your storage method and the feeding system will dramatically impact the "stretch" of the hay supply this winter. The following table is a guide for determining how many feeding days are available for 100 big bales of a common

Number of Feeding Days Available for 100 Bales of Hay feeding system

storage method	unrolled	ring feeder	inverted cone feeder
in barn	63	120	125
under plastic	46	109	117
plastic wrap	64	119	127
no cover	28	82	92

Based on 30 cows in mid- to late gestation with average body weight of 1200 lbs.: hay is grass/legume with 12% crude protein and 54% TDN averaging 1000 lbs. per bale and 90% dry matter.

Animal Diagnostic Services Expanded

With the recent construction of new laboratory and animal diagnostic facilities in Harrisburg, the Bureau of Animal Industry is making renewed efforts to provide diagnostic services to animal agriculture.

The services are now provided jointly by the Bureau of Animal Industry (BAI), The University of Pennsylvania (U of P), and the Pennsylvania State University (PSU). The BAI facilities (717-787-8808) are located in Harrisburg behind the Department of Agriculture Building and are under the direction of Dr. Fred Rommel. The U of P facilities (610-444-5800) are situated 10 miles east of Cochranville on Route 926 at the New Bolton Center and are under the direction of Dr. Helen Acland. PSU's facilities (814-863-0837) are at the Animal Disease Lab located about 1 mile northeast of Beaver Stadium on the Penn State Campus in State College and are directed by Dr. Tom Drake.

Diagnostic work is distributed among the various institutions according to each lab's specialty. All lab work can be accessed by computer at any location, and the approach for every case will involve more cooperation than that of previous years.

One of the most encouraging changes added is that of a courier service. A producer or veterinarian can have tissues or dead animals (maximum weight limit 20 pounds picked up at their farm or office at no charge, and the material will be delivered to one of the labs within 24 hours. One needs only call the US Cargo office nearest their location, and a driver will pick the item up, provided it's packed on ice and in an insulated container. BUSINESS ◆ NEWS

Winners Named In Grain Sorghum Contest

DEKALB, Ill. — Winners of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey first place winners in the 1996 National Grain Sorghum Producers Yield and Management Contest were recently announced.

Pennsylvania winners were Richard and Carole Schmalz, Doylestown. Carole earned state first place in the no-till division with a yield of 86.54 bushels per acre of Dekalb DK37 grain sorghum. Her husband Richard earned first place honors with a conventional nonirrigated yield of 87.08 bushels using Dekalb DK28E.

The Schmalz farming operation consists of more than 400 acres of corn, grain sorghum, and wheat. They are also Dekalb seed dealers. Carole credits good growing conditions, while Richard claims it was the use of a good hybrid and proper soil pH. This marks the sixth consecutive year that one of them has claimed first place in this contest.

New Jersey first place honors went to Greg Manners, Ringoes, in the nonirrigated division with a yield of 106.69 bushels per acre using Dekalb DK28 grain sorghum.

Manners farms 800 acres and planted 100 acres to grain sorghum in 1996. He also grows hay, corn, rye, wheats and oats, and is a Dekalb seed dealer. Manners is a five-time winner of this contest and attributes his success this year to planting a high quality Dekalb seed.

Deere Day At Dealer

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — John Deere Day was held recently here at Smith's Implements, Inc.

Deere Day was the first of a week-long event. At the same time, the dealership was offering customers a 10 percent discount on all cash sales, special equipment clinics, and other discounts.

About 450 attended the Deere Day, in which awards were presented.

Other activities included a farm business expo which included displays by York Farm Credit, First National Bank of Mercersburg, Stihl Products, Landpride Equipment, H&S Farm Equipment, and others.

A Signature 96 Award was presented to the sales, service and parts departments by Tom Ellicott, Deere representative. Ross Smith thanked customers for their support and spoke about the services soon to be available at the implement dealership. One includes a scheduled parts delivery van to make monthly visits to customers in outlying areas. Machine-down parts which are specially ordered on weekdays will now arrive the next day between 8 a.m.-8:30 a.m. for customers to pick up.

Enterprise Announces Sales Staff Expansion

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Randy Carper, vice president of sales and marketing, announced the addition of three new sales specialists to the Agway sales team.

Julie Ann Longenbach has joined Agway as a feed sales specialist serving customers in the York County territory. Longenbach recently completed her master's degree in animal science from Penn State where she has a bachelor's degree in animal bioscience. She was raised on a 90-cow dairy farm in Northampton.

Ralph E. Horchler Jr. will begin servicing crop sales customers from the New Wilmington Agway facility. Horchler has spent the past seven years as a retail manager and crop sales specialist in the Lancaster market area. In addition, he has experience as a custom applicator. Horchler has a degree from Penn State in animal production.

Gregory Cox has assumed the feed sales responsibility for Agway Ag Products in the Pennsylvania counties of Washington, Greene, Fayette, and parts of Westmoreland. Ag Chemical Retailers Recognized As Technology Centers

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Monsanto has selected numerous agrichemical retailers in the Mid-Atlantic area to be designated Roundup Ready™ Technology Centers — providing them training to better deliver cutting-edge biotechnology information and services to growers.

Authorized Roundup Ready Technology Centers will be primary information source and service provider for area growers interested in planting Roundup Ready™ soybeans, the first genetically engineered product for soybeans.

Accreditation as a technology Center is limited to ag chem retailers whose employees successfully complete extensive training on farm agronomic issues, technical recommendations and applications services in support of Roundup Ready soybean growers.

"We are excited about helping retailers stay on the cutting-edge of biotechnology," said Jay Baratelli, Monsanto local market manager. "Roundup Ready soybeans provide superior crop safety and outstanding broad-spectrum control of large and small weeds, including those resistant to other soybean herbicides."

Growers who purchase Roundup Ready soybean seed and enroll at designated Roundup Ready Technology Centers will be eligible to participate in the new Bonus Service Package.

The Bonus Service Package offers many valuable benefits to area farmers: Service vouchers worth $1 for each unit 50 pounds up to 100 units or 40 free spray tips; and service vouchers worth $.20 per unit for purchases over 100 units

The service vouchers can be redeemed for custom application, scouting or other services at Roundup Ready Technology Centers.

Tractor Provides High Crop Clearance

ATLANTA, Ga. — Massey Ferguson's new MF 399 Mudder tractor is specially designed to provide high crop clearance and creep ground speeds. It is available in either a cab or footstep four-wheel drive model.

"The MF 399 Mudder tractor is well adapted to vegetable or bedded farming typically found in the western states, as well as rice field farming in the delta area of Louisiana and Arkansas," said John Sargeant, Massey Ferguson product marketing manager. "With 95 PTO horsepower, this tractor is the ideal size to handle cultivating, planting, transplanting and harvesting applications."

Ground clearance is 24.6 inches under the front axle and 20.1 inches under the drawbar. With these high clearances the tractor can be operated over tall or bedded crops without damaging the plants and improving crop quality and profitability.

The MF 399 Mudder utilizes a standard 12x12 Synchronized Shuttle transmission with an optional creeper gear that adds four extra-slow forward speeds. The transmission with creeper gear provides ground speeds as low as .21 mph at standard PTO rpm and a transport speed of just over 19 mph at rated engine rpm. This wide range of speeds provides excellent speed matching from harvesting and "pick and pack" operations to high transport speeds.

Agtrol Names V.P.

HOUSTON, Texas — Gerald C. (Butch) Frazee has joined Agtrol Chemical Products as executive vice president. The announcement was made by Dr. Graham Stoner, president of Agtrol Chemical Products.

Frazee comes to Agtrol from the Griffin Corporation, where he held the position of president, Special Products Group.

White Reveals 16-Row Horizontal Fold Planter

ATLANTA, Ga. — Continuing to set the standard in the manufacture of superior planters, White introduces the new 6346 horizontal fold planter. The White 6346 is specially designed to significantly reduce time between crops and improve productivity.

For planting both soybeans and corn, the White 6346 has a hydraulic folding frame designed to offer a 16-row 30 inch configuration and a 17-row 15 inch configuration. This patented two-fold design allows for quick changeover time and easy transport. When the operator is ready to work the next field, the 6346 quickly folds into a transport width of 22 feet 4 inches and a transport height of 10 feet six inches.

"The real beauty of the new 6346 planter is its diversity," said Randy Hoffman, general marketing manager, White Planters. "No longer will your planter sit idle while you drill soybeans, because the 6346 can be used for both."

Like all White Planters, the 6346 provides superior depth control and seeding accuracy with its dual depth gauge wheels and "walking beam" system.

To maintain accuracy on hilly ground, the frame of the 6346 flexes up or down a total of 20 degrees or 10 degrees per wing. Each row unit has an individual positive air metering system to guarantee precise, gentle seed placement. An electronic seed monitoring system warns the operator if seed flow is reduced or stopped. Durable seed hoppers have a two bushel capacity.

Fresh Markets Help Farmers And Communities

PHILADELPHIA — Area growers and shoppers will benefit from four open-air markets being launched this year by the Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust in Philadelphia.

Modeled after the popular Greenmarket program in New York City, the markets will provide growers with healthy sales from high pedestrian traffic, while cutting marketing costs. "The sites will allow regional growers easy access for setup and restocking, and shopper convenience," notes Bob Pierson, director of community markets for the Trust. Pierson is recruiting farmers for the new weekly markets.

For a flat site fee each week, grower-vendors won't have to worry about licensing or other red tape. Program staff will arrange for permits, parking arrangements and site inspections. The program also will help with publicity, through signs, fliers, local press support and plenty of word-of-mouth advertising.

Last year, Pierson helped a number of business and community groups establish the South & Passyunk Farmers' Market in Philadelphia. Its rapid popularity and the successful testing of the open-air market concept in other locations convinced Market Trust staff to develop their seasonal farmers' market program.

A nonprofit offshoot of the Reading Terminal Market in Philadelphia, the Trust promotes urban-rural connections and nutrition education as part of its mission of improving the supply of fresh, nutritious produce in Philadelphia neighborhoods. Along with the Trust's executive director, Duane Perry, and nutrition educator Sandy Sherman, Pierson has been working with Philadelphia officials and numerous community groups to get the program off to a successful start.

Quality And Freshness Sell

Urban communities embrace well-sited markets quickly, experienced grower-marketers attest. "People are looking for quality and freshness, and we can supply that, right from the field," says Lancaster, Pa., grower Earl Livengood, a regular at the South & Passyunk market in Philadelphia last year. Specializing in organically certified vegetables, the Livengood Produce stand supplied up to 40 different product varieties throughout the season at that weekly market, which ran from mid-June to late November.

"The market surpassed our expectations. It had a good start from day one and sales grew each week," says Livengood, who often sold out of a number of items in the early going.

"I've never been at a market where the people were so happy to see us, as they were at South Street," says Ernie Greaser of Quakertown, Pa. A direct-market vendor since 1990, he and his family sold at four markets last year, accounting for 95 percent of their Woodside Farm sales.

"Convenience is important to shoppers, so community markets can work really well. Shoppers really like having you wait on them and give them special attention," says Greaser, who enjoys the friendships that develop with their loyal customers.

Connecting With Consumers

"You really look forward to seeing the customers each week," agrees Cass Peterson, a Warfordsburg, Pa., farmer with more than 12 years of direct-marketeing experience. "Soon you know their names, what food they adore and what they're cooking. You give them your best. It's a real connection between eaters and growers."

A strong growers-only market offers numerous advantages — to growers and the community, says Peterson. "It becomes a community-gathering place, where people can shop while showing off the kids. It helps consumers understand seasonality and the importance of regional farming. And it helps preserve farmland while providing the means for small-scale farmers to earn a living. At these markets, you're not competing with wholesalers or discounters who can undercut your price."

A savvy marketer, Peterson grosses nearly $9,000 per acre from 14 acres of specialty vegetables, small fruits and berries, fresh-cut and dried flowers and seasonal bedding plants. She and her staff market more than 70 varieties of products, with nearly 80 percent of their sales at two farmers' markets. But even growers who specialize in just a few products can do well at a farmers' market, she points out. Displaying your wares attractively and being willing to work hard helps, she says.

"Direct marketing is the best way for small-scale growers to make their farms financially viable," notes Peterson. "Wholesaling is a recipe for losing the farm. Retail is the key. If you want to make a living by farming, you have to take your produce where people are eager to buy it and willing to pay for it."

Starting with at least four farmers at each neighborhood site will get the Philadelphia seasonal market program off to a strong start and provide shoppers with a diverse selection of fresh, regionally grown produce, says Bob Pierson. To become a vendor at one of the new markets, to help sponsor the program or to learn more about it, contact the Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust (215-928-1029, extension 25) or come to one of these regional meetings:

- Thursday, February 13, 7 p.m., Chester County Government Center, Suite 370 (the Extension Service office), 601 Westtown Road, just off Route 222 near West Chester;
- Thursday, February 20, 7 p.m., Berks County Ag Center Auditorium, Leesport, north of Reading Airport off Route 183. (For detailed directions, call 215-928-1029, ext. 25.)

2011 2WD ROPS
2000 SERIES TRACTORS
2045 4WD ROPS

DOUBLE THE BELARUS VALUE.

Even the smallest of jobs has to be done right. that's why our tough new 2000 Series tractors are built with the same durability, value and affordability you expect from Belarus.

Choose from two versatile models: the 2011 or the 2045, each with 540/1000 PTO and Category I three-point hitch. Add the strength of the hard-working 22 hp fuel efficient 2-cylinder, air-cooled diesel, and you have the small-tractor engine that's big on performance. And that makes the 2011 and 2045 tractors ideal for everything from lawn and garden work to small acreage applications.

But that's not all. The 2000 Series is available with two-wheel (2011) or four-wheel (2045) rugged traction. Additional features include the ease of power-assisted steering and a solid transmission with 18 forward and eight reverse speeds. Add them all up, and you've got the series that see small projects through from start to finish. So get a good day's work done - the Belarus way.

THE RELIABLE ONE

TOUGHER THAN THE REST

The New Holland Model L565 Super Boom™ skid-steer loader is tougher, more durable and more reliable than ever.

The "L565" offers a 40 horsepower diesel engine with an SAE load rating of a powerful 1,500 pounds.

The Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system makes it compatible with New Holland and competitive attachments. The strong boom design and massive loader pins make it more reliable. And the quick engine access makes it easier to service.

Flexibility is the key to staying productive. And that's exactly what you'll find with the AGCO® Allis 5670 utility tractor

The Key To Effective Middle Management.

In fact, this mid-range tractor has a 63 PTO hp engine that offers you the ultimate in maneuverability Its low height and low center of gravity make this the ideal tractor for working inside buildings and other confined work areas And because the platform is low to the ground, it's easy to get on and off the tractor.

- The synchromesh transmission has 16 forward and 16 reverse speed choices, with synchronized shifting in four gears and a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle
- These directional changes help to reduce loader and rear blade cycle times
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance
- As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor lies a 4-year/ 4,000-hour warranty that's backed by your dealer

To get a closer look at the 5670, stop by and see us We'll be happy to show you the way to higher productivity

Award Honors Md. Farm Family For Land Stewardship

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A fourth-generation Maryland farm family hailed as a strong, vocal proponent of state and national farmland protection programs and the usage of environmentally sound farming practices received the first national Steward of the Land Award.

American Farmland Trust, a national nonprofit farmland conservation organization, chose the Wayne McGinnis family of Baltimore County, Md., for the award over 60 other nominees nationwide in recognition of its outstanding efforts in land stewardship, farmland conservation policy, and the use of environmentally and economically sustainable farming practices.

Wayne McGinnis accepted the award at a special luncheon of the AFT board of directors in Washington attended by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman and Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Richard Rominger. Both Rominger and Glickman praised the McGinnis family for their conservation efforts.

A member of the 1958 University of Maryland basketball team which finished sixth in the NCAA, McGinnis owns and operates the 1,400-acre McGinnis Family Farm in north Baltimore County, Md. The tall, strapping, 6-foot, 7-inch farmer raises corn, soybeans, wheat and hay. He also has 160 head of Angus beef cattle.

The $10,000 award honors the memory of Peggy McGrath Rockefeller, philanthropist, farmer and AFT founder who died last year. It recognizes the spirited inspiration and deep personal commitment to farmland conservation that Mrs. Rockefeller brought to AFT from its establishment in 1980 until her passing.

"Mrs. Rockefeller strongly believed in the family farmer and the protection of the nation's best and most productive land," said AFT President Ralph Grossi. "Wayne McGinnis and his family have demonstrated that same strong commitment to the conservation of our nation's agricultural resources as Mrs. Rockefeller did. I know she would have been very pleased with AFT's choice. The family truly is a model for farmers across the nation."

"Our family are fourth-generation farmers who have always had a real passion for the land," said McGinnis. "So it's an honor, a great honor in fact, to be recognized for something we have believed in so strongly and committed ourselves to so much."

McGinnis was born and raised on his family farm in Baltimore County. He received a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland where he met his wife, the former Harriet Husted. She now handles the farm's adminstrative matters. Their three children all grew up on the farm and intend to return some day.

McGinnis was an early leader in the usage, demonstration, and promotion of environmentally sound farming practices. As early as 1969, he converted his farm to "no till" cultivation, a then new form of cultivation that improved organic matter on his crop acreage. He used other practices as well to reduce soil movement and protect the water quality of streams. He also continued to experiment on ways to reduce the use of pesticides and fertilizers and created wildlife habitat on the nonproductive portions of his farm.

In the 1970s, McGinnis actively supported Baltimore County efforts to adopt agricultural zoning and protect farmland from suburban sprawl. His work on three different county committees resulted in the establishment of ag zoning for a third of the county. Later he aggressively promoted and placed his own farm in the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Program. Today the county ranks in the top 10 in agricultural preservation nationally, having protected more than 19,000 acres of farmland.

McGinnis also aggressively promoted farmland protection at the state level and recently was appointed chair of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation. He has taken part in national farmland protection efforts as well, speaking before farm groups, legislators, reporters, planners and government officials in numerous states.

"Wayne McGinnis feels so strongly in his heart his commitment for agriculture that he has spoken up even when it was not politic to do," said Wallace Lippincott, program adminstrator for the Baltimore County Department of Environmental Protection and Resource Management, who nominated the McGinnis family for the award. "He truly has made a difference in farming and land preservation in his community, the state and the nation."

LVNB Holds Ag Seminar

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — More than 500 people on Wednesday attended the annual spring agriculture seminar sponsored by the Lebanon Valley National Bank agricultural lending group, at the Lebanon Valley Exposition Center at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

Speakers for the event included Dr. Robert Yonkers, a Penn State University agricultural economist who discussed the dairy situation and predicted that while dairy producers can expected to receive less for their milk this year, compared to last year, that it shouldn't be as much of a drop as some have predicted.

Also speaking was H. Louis Moore, Penn State professor emeritus of agricultural economics, who said that livestock and grain prices appear set to remain strong for the coming year, largely because of the growth in exports. He said that 15 percent of the beef, as well as 20 percent of the United States' poultry production is to be exported, helping to prevent domestic surpluses and thus lower prices.

The same is true for grain production, he said, predicting relatively strong prices because of export commitments.

Albert Murry, president and CEO of LVNB, also addressed the audience, discussing financial tools that may be available to them to survive uncertainties in farming.

Erik Bucks, a nutrient management specialist with the Lebanon County Conservation District, also talked to the group. He discussed the help that the Conservation District exists to provide free to customers, in addition to opportunities through the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Well-known Pennsylvania weatherman Joe Bastardi, of Accuweather and the Penn State public television weather program, "Weather World," talked about weather patterns in the Lebanon Valley and how major winter storms have formed over the past years.

Bastardi gave a list of the 10 most significant winter storms in the Lebanon Valley during the past years, and showed a comparision of how the storms developed.

Bastardi reviewed each of the storms and what made each unique, such as the weather following the storms. For example, the January 1996 blizzard (Farm Show storm) was followed by a flood of a level that hadn't been experienced since the 1972 flood associated with Hurricane Agnes.

The weatherman said that residents of the Lebanon Valley are extremely fortunate, weather-wise to live where they do, because of the protections provided by the mountain ranges to the west, south and northeast.

Most of the severity of storms passes either to the north or south of the Lebanon Valley, he said.

Fruit School In March

KEEDYSVILLE, Md. — The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service has scheduled its Western Maryland Fruit School, a three-day workshop is designed to update the skills of those presently producing fruit and introduce the novice or hobbyist to the potentials of this growing industry. This program will be held on Saturdays, March 8, 15, and 22 at the Western Maryland Research and Education Center (WMREC), Keedysville, Md. from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Registration is $15 per day and $40 for the entire series and includes all program handout materials.

This year's program includes Tony Wolf from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, grape production, and Gary Pavlis, Rutgers University, providing his blueberry expertise.

Both classroom and field instruction are to be provided on most fruit crops. Crops include apple, pear, Asian pear, peaches, cherries, nectarines, brambles, strawberries, gooseberries, currants, elderberries, wine and table grapes, and blueberries. Field instruction will include pruning on many of the crops noted and tree grafting.

To keep the cost of the program down, each participant is to bring their own lunch. Beverages and snacks will be provided. Preregistration is required as the total number of participants is limited.

For more information, call either Rick Heflebower at (301) 432-2734 or Steve Bogash at (301) 432-4492.

There will be two breakout sessions in the afternoon. Dr. Jim Wilcox from Laurel Hill Veterinary Clinic and Jake Guffey, county extension agent will present a program on dry cow care and Mark Madden will present corn herbicide updates and on-board sprayer cleaners.

Blood pressure, blood sugar, and pulmonary function tests will be run free of charge as well as foot screenings. Chloresterol will be checked for $5.

Badger is back.®

AN OPEN LETTER TO BADGER EQUIPMENT CUSTOMERS

Very soon, new Badger farm equipment will once again be rolling through the countryside, wearing its familiar green color and well-known Badger name. We are very pleased to announce that as an affiliate company of Miller-St. Nazianz, we have purchased the product lines and parts business of Badger Northland, and we plan to begin immediately to rebuild the proud Badger brand.

PARTS FIRST. Our first priority will be to restock the parts pipelines to help you keep your Badger equipment operating in top condition.

NEW EQUIPMENT. As soon as possible, we will begin to build new Badger equipment, and later introduce several new products as well. The major product lines will include forage boxes, forage blowers, silo unloaders, barn cleaners, manure tankers and pumps.

A PROUD HERITAGE. Miller-St. Nazianz designs, builds and markets the Miller Pro brand of forage boxes, running gear, dump boxes, rotary rakes, crop sprayers, commercial truck sprayers, field cultivators, and hay and grain elevators. We have been in business for nearly 100 years, and enjoy a very high customer satisfaction rating. It is the new company's plan to maintain the proud heritage of Badger, and to produce exceptionally high quality Badger products.

FOR MORE INFORMATION. If you have immediate questions, please contact your local Badger dealer. We will keep you informed of our progress, and look forward to serving your needs and providing you with quality Badger parts and equipment.
